DOUGLAS PREDICTS SOARING FOOD BILL

Former NDP leader Tommy Douglas says national food wholesalers are predicting price increases of up to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year.

In a telephone interview from Nanaimo today, Douglas told the Times on his return from a week's tour of Saskatchewan, where he was once premier, that the predicted increases came from a wholesaler's bulletin shown to him by the manager of a co-operative store.

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening" he said.

Douglas is telling political rallies in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-Islands riding where he is campaigning for re-election that there has been no accompanying price rise to farmers or pay raise for retail food workers — "among the lowest paid of all groups."

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year," he said.

"This was a bulletin of estimates of what would happen to the price levels of various classes of food products."

Douglas said the food prices were being raised because people wanted to "maximize their profits."

He said foods such as sugar which reached all-time low prices were bought up and stockpiled for later sale. Also the element of competition had "almost entirely disappeared."

Douglas said an NDP government would set up a prices review board which would scrutinize price increases like the ones he forecast.

Pen 'Out of Control'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Warden Donald Clark says it's impossible to control the 365 tough criminals housed in Millhaven, the new maximum security prison he heads 14 miles west of here.

He says he has been stripped of disciplinary powers by a chain of incompetent or inexperienced officials.

"This has not only made controls of the inmate population impossible, but has almost completely destroyed the staff morale," Mr. Clark said in a 10-page letter to Douglas Alkenbrack, Progressive Conservative member for Frontenac-Lennox and Addington in the last Parliament.

But Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said today he has been told that Clark never stated that it is impossible to control the prisoners of his institution.

Goyer criticized Alkenbrack.

"I deplore the fact that an MP is playing with the truth and misleading the public with such a report," Goyer said.

"I'm assured that Mr. Clark never wrote such a letter to Mr. Alkenbrack."

The solicitor-general said his information came in a conversation with the commissioner of the Canadian penitentiary service.

The commission had spoken with Clark and assured Goyer that such a letter had not been written.

Although Millhaven was designed as one of the most secure prisons in Canada, it experienced the biggest escape in Canada's history when 14 men got free July 10.

The warden's letter indicated he expected further trouble from the prisoners, all hardened criminals and many of them veterans of the 500-man Kingston penitentiary riot in April, 1971, that left two men dead and 11 injured.

Mr. Clark said the rioters were never punished for wrecking the old prison and when Millhaven was opened prematurely to house them they brought the same "mutinous and rebellious intentions."

"At least 25 per cent of the present population continue to have this intention knowing they won't face any significant form of punishment," the letter says.

Mr. Clark puts much of the blame for the July escape and other problems on the "turnover of senior staff in the security division" — Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer's department.

The warden says his superiors have taken away most of his power and now prisoners "can destroy public property with impunity, without having to pay a portion of the damages."

Mr. Alkenbrack said after an all-candidates meeting Monday night he would intercede on behalf of Mr. Clark if he (Clark) was fired because of the letter.

"If they fire Mr. Clark for giving the truth on this matter, I will, as I know others will intercede on his behalf."

After the meeting, Mr. Alkenbrack said he has information about a so-called uprising at Millhaven about three weeks ago which allegedly damaged portions of six cell blocks, causing about $4,000 in damage. This was never made public, he said.

He added that the commission inquiry into the July break at Millhaven now is completed, but the report won't be made public by Mr. Goyer "because he knows this is an issue in this area and will damage the Liberal government."

Liberal candidate Peter MacKinnon said there should be a higher degree of security and discipline within the penitentiary and the commission's report should be made public.

Now Nixon 'Pushing For More'

By VICTOR ZORZA
(Special to the Times)

Some of the evidence now available suggests that President Nixon may have forced Hanoi some two months ago to make the basic concessions that would enable him to end the war before the elections, on terms acceptable to him, and that he has since then been holding out for even better terms.

The outlines of the settlement that are beginning to emerge through the fog of words satisfy Nixon's two unalterable demands — that there should be no Communist take-over in the south, and no "bloodbath" after the U.S. withdrawal.

What Nixon is trying to get now, on top of that, is a deal that would enable the Saigon regime to survive not just for the next four years, to give him a trouble-free second term, but even longer than that.

This conclusion, based on an analysis of the evidence which will be summarized in this series of articles, poses a difficult question. The only threat that Nixon could plausibly hold over North Vietnam to force it to its knees is an increase in the bombing. Any such increase hardly can be militarily more effective than the present bombing offensive. How then could Nixon have pushed Hanoi into making such major concessions?

The answer must be sought in what is happening on the ground in Vietnam now, and in the backstage political intrigues that preceded the present moves.

Hanoi's decision to pull out of the war may be surmised from both military and political intelligence, although administration sources maintain that no such conclusion is warranted by the available evidence.

Military intelligence shows that communist cadres, highly trained hard-core party professionals, are quietly but systematically taking up positions in areas the Vietcong expects to hold after a cease-fire. The infiltration is not

In Spain, it doesn't matter how you play the game — the main thing is whether you win or lose.

Bomb Kills B.C. Tourist

BUENOS AIRES (CP-Reuter) — A vacationing airline worker was killed and her optometrist husband injured Monday night when a terrorist bomb exploded on the 22nd floor of a luxury American-owned hotel 48 hours before planned demonstrations in support of former Agentine president Juan Peron.

Lois Crozier, 35, of West Vancouver, was killed when the blast shook the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel, starting a fire that affected the top four floors.

The bomb went off at 6:20 p.m. in room 2204, which had been rented by two men who gave addresses in Rosario and Mar del Plata.

A section of the corridor wall 20 feet square was pulverized and the blast ripped into room 2203 across the hall where Crozier and his wife were talking with an American woman who also was badly hurt.

Crozier was rescued first by firemen and was conscious as they took him to an ambulance. His badly burned wife was brought out minutes later and died in Fernandez Hospital.

Crozier was listed in critical condition.

The blast followed a series of explosions in Argentine cities Sunday night apparently set by Peronist supporters in commemoration of Peron's march toward the presidency 27 years ago.

Most of the other bombs had been placed in the homes of military officers in Buenos Aires, Santa Fe, Mar del Plata and Mendoza. A navy captain and a neighbor were injured in a Buenos Aires suburb blast, but the other explosions only caused property damage.

Demolition experts defused at least six other bombs.

SHRUM TURNS BARRETT OFF

The Hydro chairman, speaking to a conference of the Building Owners and Managers Association, said the cost to a homeowner of leaving a light bulb on overnight would be only one-third of a cent.

"What I'm trying to say is when you turn off the lights you have to be careful that you don't fall flat on your face in the darkness," he said. "That's an inside joke."

Shrum's remark came in the wake of Barrett's recent call for consumers to cut back on the use of electrical power.

Kissinger In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, is winding up a day's meeting with North Vietnam negotiator Xuay Thuy in Paris today and will fly from there to Saigon to consult South Vietnamese President Thieu.

The White House said Kissinger was going to South Vietnam on President Nixon's direction for what were termed "regular consultations."

In Saigon, President Thieu summoned his cabinet to an urgent meeting today, apparently to brief them on South Vietnam's reaction to new diplomatic moves towards halting the war.

S. Korea Under Martial Law

SEOUL (UPI) — President Park Chung Hee today put South Korea under martial law and said the people must approve his plans for political reform if the talks with North Korea on national unification are to continue.

Park's surprise announcement was made to the nation at 6:45 p.m. and martial law went into effect 15 minutes later. Park dissolved Parliament, suspended the constitution he helped to draft in 1963, and banned all political activity.

The former army general, who came to power in 1961, said amendments to the constitution would be announced by Oct. 27 and submitted to a vote of the people.

Park said that if the amendments are turned down by the referendum, he will interpret it as an expression of the will of the people against the dialogue betwen North and South Korea.

"And then I will seek a new approach to the task of national unification," Park added.

Park's move came only one week before the third round of talks between the North and South Korean Red Cross organizations on the question of reuniting divided Korean families. The talks are scheduled to resume Oct. 24 in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Whether the unpredictable North Koreans would seize on Park's latest move as an excuse for delaying the negotiations remained to be seen. There was no immediate comment from North Korean news outlets.

The president said that a major reform is necessary not only to push the North-South dialogue positively, but to cope with changes in the international situation.

Following the martial-law proclamation, soldiers in armored vehicles took up positions around major public buildings in the heart of Seoul.

Park named army chief-of-staff General Roh-Jae Hyon to execute the martial law edict.

UNION CHIEF WANTS END TO OVERTIME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades' Council, told a meeting of industrial contractors Monday that building trades' unions are going to "look very hard" at the elimination of overtime in industry.

He said overtime work was "a plague in industry" and said he wants to see a guaranteed income and guaranteed work year established when the next construction industry agreement is fixed in 1974.

"The rank-and-file man of today is better educated, better trained and is looking for a higher standard of living," Kinnaird said.

"He is out of the pioneer stage. If you want the best people in industry, you are going to have to give them the best conditions.

Kinnaird said he hopes management and unions "can develop a relationship in which we can avoid a hat-trick (of major shutdowns) in 1974."

Chile Strike, Restrictions Snowball

SANTIAGO (AP) — The government clamped state of emergency restrictions on still another Chilean province today as a country-wide strike of truckers and shopkeepers gained new sympathizers.

Physicians, merchant marine captains and bank employees joined the snowballing strike in spport of 400 jailed truck drivers. Their action threatened to escalate into a general strike.

Doctors in Santiago and Valparaiso said they would treat only emergency cases for 48 hours starting at midnight Wednesday. Sea captains said they would stay in port. Bank employees said they would remain home.

A second length of railway line between Santiago and the Pacific coast was blown up in a series of incidents that marked the protest.

Hecklers Silence Sharp

Times News Services

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was forced to stop speaking three times in Toronto Monday night when the audience at an all-candidates meeting drowned him out by booing and clapping.

The first interruption in his Eglinton riding meeting came when Sharp said the baby boom rather than Liberal management of the economy was responsible for unemployment.

The second interruption was after Sharp praised his government for its handling of the FLQ crisis in Quebec in 1970.

Sharp was drowned out by rhythmic hand clapping when he accused New Democratic Party leader David Lewis of being dishonest in his attacks on tax concessions to large corporations.

Murray Maynard, the Progressive Conservative candidate and Eleanor Pelgine, the New Democratic candidate, also were booed.

Sharp has been MP for Eglinton since 1963.

Meanwhile, NDP leader Lewis, who has repeatedly refused "to play the numbers game" when asked to predict Oct. 30 election results, told a rousing audience of supporters in Ottawa the party has a realistic chance of placing second.

Lewis said former Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans is among thousands of disaffected Liberals intending to vote New Democrat.

Kierans resigned from the federal cabinet last year in protest over government economic policy and wrote the introduction to a book on government handling of corporations published last week under Lewis' name.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, released Monday, Kierans said he intends voting New Democrat in Trudeau's riding on Montreal Mount Royal.

The Economic Council of Canada was again subject to NDP attack, with Lewis charging that its annual report is being delayed until after the election.

The NDP leader said he has direct information that the report, usually published in September of early October, is severely critical of the Liberal government's economic performance.

He said he was not accusing council chairman Andrew Renauld, appointed by Prime Minister Trudeau, of buckling under political pressure. Rather, he said, the council simply does not want to get involved in the campaign.

But Lewis said all such reports, critical or not, should be made public especially at election time.

In Tory action, an environmental corps to relieve youth unemployment and regional training centres to promote excellence in sports have been proposed by the Progressive Conservative party in policy papers.

The papers outline Conservative proposals on youth and sports. The party said "key guide" in preparing the documents were the discussion papers used at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa last December and voting on the discussion papers.

The youth policy paper said that an environmental corps would be established in the environment department to help preserve natural resources and the environment.

GERM-MAKER KIT 'OUT OF THE HOUSE'

Children using "environmental test kits" now on sale in Victoria stores could grow disease-causing bacteria, a Victoria pathologist confirmed Monday.

Dr. G. A. Montessori, head of surgical pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he grew three kinds of dangerous bacteria using materials provided in the kit. These included staphylococcus aureus (a germ causing boils), salmonella (a germ that causes anything from diarrhea to typhoid) and chigella (a germ that also causes diarrhea).

Local health authorities have contacted both provincial and federal governments to see what can be done to remove the kits from the market.

PROTEST KILLS HYDRO PLAN

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — B.C. Hydro today cancelled a contract to build a power transmission line across farm land after farmers in the area rejected the utility's last land expropriation offer.

Len Butler, Peace River country organizer for the National Farmers' Union and spokesman for farmers in the protest, said he had "mixed feelings" about Hydro's decision and he hoped that the contractors who were to build the line and the communities to be served wouldn't suffer.

"It's obvious that Hydro is trying to make scapegoats of us but I hope that the communities will see through this ploy," he said.

Monday was the deadline set by Hydro for the farmers to accept Hydro's last offer for their land or challenge it in the courts. If neither step was taken, Hydro said it wouldn't build the line.

The farmers voted to reject the offer at a weekend meeting.

Hydro had said the line, between Dawson Creek and Fort St. John, was necessary to prevent overloading of existing transmission lines.

4,000 Fail Nutrition Test

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A $2 million, two-year cross-country survey of the state of nutrition of 21,000 "typical" Canadians officially ends today, with the last clinic at Port au Port, Nfld.

And since the survey started in Ottawa in September, 10 Nutrition Canada health teams have uncovered "substantial malnutrition" along with health problems serious enough among 4,000 of those surveyed for their doctors to be notified.

The "health problems" which prompted Nutrition Canada officials to mail off "referral notices" to the doctors of the 4,000 individuals ranged from simple vitamin deficiencies to higher-than-normal cholesterol blood levels to more serious ailments such as diabetes and heart problems.

If the preliminary results of the survey are at all representative of Canada's 21 million residents, then even our highly-developed society not only has significant malnutrition problems but as many as 20 per cent of the population have serious enough health problems for them to see a doctor. Not all of the problems are nutritionally-caused, though many are.

The final results of computer analysis, which are now just starting in earnest, should be available early next year, according to Dr. Zachary Sabry, national co-ordinator of Nutrition Canada. At that time, breakdowns, exact figures and patterns of nutritional and health problems uncovered by the survey will be made available.

It is obvious that some of the problems uncovered by the survey will require follow-up by the government, either in the form of new regulations on the nutrition of content of certain foods, new programs to help certain segments of the population overcome geographically, economically or racially-related nutritional problems, and certainly new educational thrusts in the nutrition field, in co-operation with the provinces.

The survey started two years ago in Ottawa, with the intent of determining the nutritional status of all segments of Canadian society.

In the interval, randomly selected residents of all provinces have been surveyed, half of them during the winter, half of them during the summer.

The survey included a medical and dental examination, a nutritional-diet interview, body measurements and 21 laboratory tests of blood and urine samples.

A special part of the survey on itinerant teen-agers had to be cancelled due to lack of funds.

Oak Bay Sets Rules For Yacht Club Land

A bylaw was passed Monday night by Oak Bay council setting down regulations for the property of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club on Ripon.

Nobody spoke at a public hearing which preceded passing of the bylaw.

The bylaw requires the club to provide 60 per cent parking for all available boat berths. The council has set a maximum of 250 berths now that the new breakwater has been completed. This means a total of 150 parking places.

The bylaw also requires that 66 per cent parking be provided if found necessary.

The council was notified that the Oak Bay Lions Club will pay up to $500 for a swirl pool bath motor for the Henderson Park pavilion.

It also received a letter from the Oak Bay Secondary School band, thanking it for a $1,000 donation toward the band's European tour.

Council received a letter from Hamish Simpson, headmaster of Glenlyon Boys' School, expressing concern that the proposed addition to the breakwater at Oak Bay Marina would affect the beach in front of the school property and other waterfront beaches in that area.

"I will be extremely surprised if the new breakwater does not adversely affect the condition of the beach in front of the school property," Simpson wrote," and it may well affect a number of other waterfront beaches in the area as well."

He said, "I would ask for your wholehearted support in case the new Turkey Head extension does in fact cause a worsening of our beach condition and, perhaps, you would insist that contingency funds be set aside by the federal government in the eventuality of this occurring?"

. . . ELECTION

The corps would be expanded every summer to employ 15,000 young Canadians in clean-up and environmental operations across the country.

Claude Wagner, leader of the Progressive Conservative campaign in Quebec, accused the Liberals today of carrying on a racist campaign in the province.

He also charged the Liberals with "McCarthyism" for remarks about members of his staff.

Stanfield at one point applauded his Quebec lieutenant when he challenged Prime Minister Trudeau to show a Quebec Liberal campaign film in English Canada.

He said the film shows French-speaking ministers, including Jean-Luc Pepin and Gerard Pelletier, congratulating themselves about the good job they are doing in Ottawa.

Wind Cuts Search

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP — Severe weather along Alaska's rugged coast hampered massive search efforts today by a fleet of 30 planes for a missing light plane carrying Hale Boggs of Louisiana, Democratic leader in the U.S. House of Representatives, and three other persons, including Alaska's only House member.

A spokesman for the air force's rescue co-ordination centre said the forecast for today was for strong wind, heavy overcast and "very marginal flying weather."

Meanwhile, an air force rescue plane searched throughout the night for the missing craft, which failed to show up late Monday on a scheduled 2½-hour, 560-mile flight to Juneau.

Aboard the twin-engined Cessna 310 were Boggs, 58; Representative Nick Begich, a 40-year-old Democrat; Begich's administrative assistant, Russell Brown, 37, and the pilot, 38-year-old Don Jonz.

"We assume that the airplane is down," an FAA spokesman said Monday night.

. . . VIETNAM

confined to military personnel, or to the isolated areas held by Vietcong guerrillas, which at one time were thought to suggest the possibility of "leopard spot" cease-fire lines, on the principle that they would be allowed to hold the ground they controlled. A new underground civilian infrastructure is being laid down by the Communists in politically important areas — for instance, around some of the cities. Some of the "leopard spots" are disappearing, others are being stretched out.

Who would detach scarce trained cadres for tasks that are not immediate, at a time when they are needed so badly in areas where the fighting is at its fiercest. Some of the movement now observed is not military in purpose, and it therefore suggests that a decision has been made to cease fire soon, and to put the cadres in place so that they would be ready to organize the new areas when the leopard spots have been expanded into the more easily administered zebra stripes.

By itself, military intelligence about Vietcong movements cannot be regarded as a sure guide to Communist intentions. We have been deceived by it too often in the past. But the analysis of political articles in the North Vietnamese press shows that by August the Hannoi leaders already were trying to get party officials wed to the idea of a compromise settlement.

The articles suggest that the tug of war between those leaders who wanted to stop the fighting, and those who wanted it to go on, which had been evident between the lines of the Hanoi press for some time, by that time had been won by the supporters of a compromise settlement. The power struggle was determined by bringing two new members into the ruling politburo once the failure of the Easter offensive became evident.

Changes in the composition of the politburo had been repeatedly postponed since 1967, when the first vacancy became available, in order to avoid disturbing the delicate balance within the ruling group. We now know enough about the pattern of change in Communist politburos generally to be able to determine, by an elaborate analytical process, that the Hanoi appointments reflect a radical shift of power and of policy.

In summary, the political significance of the changes is evident from their impact on the position of General Vo Nguyen Giap, the minister of defence, already shaken by the failure of the Easter offensive which he had planned and executed. He had recovered from his first setback, the failure of the 1968 Tet offensive, without lasting damage to his position, but two such failures in succession carry their own penalty.

In consequence, Giap's power as the chief military authority in the 11-member ruling group has now been diluted, if not completely undermined, by the appointment to the politburo of General Van Tien Dun, the chief of staff of North Vietnam's armed forces, who has shown itself on occasion to be in less than complete agreement with his boss.

The appointment is the more wounding to Giap in that chiefs of staff are not usually promoted to the politburo in Communist countries. The significance of the change might perhaps be best illustrated by comparing it to the appointment by President Nixon, to take an imaginary case, of the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff to a position in the cabinet, after the secretary of defence had been publicly seen to fail in a major undertaking. Giap's own position was further weakened by the appointment to the politburo of the minister of public security, Tran Quoc Hoan, whose organization is responsible for certain paramilitary operations in North Vietnam. Hints of friction between him and Giap have also appeared in the Hanoi press in the past.

Outwardly, Giap's position may remain unaffected, to avoid giving the outside world an impression of leadership trouble. But it is clear from the articles in the Hanoi press that the leadership changes signify the defeat of the war faction of which Giap has been the leading member, and the emergence of a politburo majority in favor of a peace settlement.

the weather

A flat ridge of high pressure will continue to dominate the weather pattern over B.C. giving light winds, mild temperature and sunny skies to most areas. However, the stable weather pattern is beginning to create its own problems. The light winds and warm air have allowed dense fog banks to form along the outer coast. In addition, the stable air mass is trapping the smoke from slash burning and this is filtering out much of the sunlight in some areas.

QUEEN IN YUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE (CP) — The Queen arrived today for a five-day state visit to Yugoslavia, the first state visit of a British sovereign to a Communist country.

President Tito, his wife and a big group of top Yugoslav leaders welcomed the Queen, Prince Philip, and Princess Anne at the flag-bedecked airport. Flowers were presented and a military band played anthems of the two countries.

A guard of honor was lined up along a red velvet carpet and guns fired a salute under grey skies.

Yugoslav newspapers stressed that the visit marked a climax of good relations between Britain and Yugoslavia, allies in the two world wars.

Junkyard 'Crime Headquarters'

NEW YORK (AP) — A dirty grey and blue junkyard trailer, surrounded by discarded auto wrecks and often frequented by Cadillacs, has been unmasked as organized crime's "summit headquarters" for the New York City area.

A sweeping dragnet, involving issuance of subpoenas to more than 600 reputed organized crime figures, was announced Monday by Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold, who called it the biggest underworld investigation in history.

Gold disclosed that three telephones had been bugged and an eavesdropping device had been installed last April in the 40-by 15-foot trailer in Brooklyn which is surrounded by barbed wire and guarded at night by dogs.

Conversations recorded during the last seven months and a gallery of still and moving pictures revealed "the comings and goings of prominent members of the five organized crime families of New York City and other people," Gold said.

CRIME RANGE WIDE

Included in the range of crimes said to have been discussed in the trailer were narcotics, counterfeiting, labor racketeering, auto theft, insurance fraud, prostitution, gambling, loansharking, burglary and arson.

"All the top members of organized crime had been in the trailer," Gold said.

An estimated 100 policemen also were understood to have been issued subpoenas.

"We have pierced the vein of organized crime," said Gold.

The breakthrough was announced after a force of 1,200 policemen had fanned out across the five counties of New York City plus suburban areas to deliver the 677 subpoenas.

Gold said that up to 1,000 witnesses would be called before a rackets grand jury in Brooklyn which is investigating organized crime.

Fancy Footwork Lets Woman Walk

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Peking surgeons, in a successful 10-hour operation, transplanted the right foot to the left leg of a woman critically injured in a train accident early this year, says a Chinese news report.

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao, carrying a New China agency story, said Tsui Wen-chien, a 29-year-old member of a commune in suburban Peking, was knocked down by a train Jan. 10.

The operation was so successful that the transplanted foot is sensitive to heat and cold, the agency said.

An artificial leg was later fitted to Miss Tsui's right thigh and she can walk without crutches, the report said.

Global War Still Near —Pearson

MONTREAL (CP) — The nuclear deterrent has not lessened the threat of global war and the challenge to peacemakers has never been greater, former prime minister Lester Pearson said Sunday.

The danger of a small war erupting by accident or miscalculation into global conflict is real, he told an audience of about 300 at an ecumenical breakfast.

Mr. Pearson, who received an embossed plaque from the Jewish-Christian Dialogue Committee for distinguished service in the case of peace and humanity, said:

"The challenges we face have never been equalled before in complexity and intensity."

The penalties for failure to establish peace "have never been greater."

"No less than our very survival is at stake," he said.

STOL Company Gets Gov't Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's airframe industry received a new lease on life Monday with the announcement of an $80-million federal project to development of a short-take-off-and-landing (STOL) aircraft by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin unveiled the plan, which includes an option for a government takeover of the firm.

The aircraft, to be called the DHC-7, will be a four-engine, 48-passenger plane, capable of operating from a 2,000-foot runway.

The first two prototypes are scheduled for completion by the spring of 1975, and Mr. Pepin estimated sales for the following five years at from 150 to 500 planes.

The plane will use a new turbo-prop engine to be developed by United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. About 80 per cent of the components can be manufactured in Canada.

Thor Stephenson, president of United Aircraft, said pollution emission standards of the new PT6A engines will exceed present acceptance levels.

The project will provide about 1,500 jobs during the development period of 1973-75, and create about 3,000 when full-scale production begins.

Mr. Pepin said the project would allow de Havilland to keep its research team of about 325 persons, described as among the best in their field.

The government option to buy de Havilland from the parent company, Hawker-Siddeley Ltd., extends to June 30, 1974, and Mr. Pepin said it was a precautionary measure allowing the government more freedom of action in the airframe field.

Any purchase of the firm would be based on its value prior to the announcement of the DHC-7 project.

No decision has been made on a takeover, he said.

The DHC-7 will have a top speed of about 275 miles an hour and a maximum range of about 1,100 miles.

B. B. Bundesman, president of de Havilland, said the plane will be the quietest transport ever marketed.

With its relatively short range and quiet flight, the aircraft will be well suited to short inter-city hops, and needing only a 2,000-foot runway it could land in or near a city centre.

Such an aircraft could eliminate the time required to travel from the airport to the downtown area.

Stars on Stage

If anybody could steal attention from a socialist premier sitting in the British Columbia Legislature it would have to be Mr. W. A. C. Bennett sitting in the opposition benches. There are some intriguing questions to be settled during the session which opened today, and the answers will become apparent only as Premier Barrett's program of legislation unfolds. But a more human mystery lies in the decision of Mr. Bennett to return to the House in which he ruled for 20 years.

It had appeared from earlier statements that he would forego the position of Leader of the Opposition and it was understood that he had named Mr. Leslie Peterson as his successor, and former mines minister Richter as interim house leader. Either this was inaccurate information or Mr. Bennett changed his mind. In any case the Social Credit leader will be on deck for the present session and may be expected to make news in his unprecedented role.

He will have considerable material for debate. Some of Mr. Barrett's legislation will involve new ventures, such as the automobile insurance bill. Some will merely go the former government's measures one better — such as his increase in old age pensions. But some legislation will wipe out or reverse Social Credit acts, such as the ban on liquor and tobacco advertising (which Mr. Peterson found to be provincially unenforceable on any reasonable basis), and Social Credit innovations in labor legislation.

The Liberals, with four members and a new leader, and the Conservatives, with two newly elected members on the floor and a leader in the spectator's gallery, will have to work hard to win the spotlight from Mr. Bennett. But the latter's motives remain a mystery.

With his chapter in British Columbia's history firmly written, he can have little to add by way of a postscript in opposition. Nor is it likely that he can hope to rehabilitate his party and lead it to an election victory perhaps four years from now. Has he come to defend himself on the spot against the heavy attacks on his regime which he may well expect? Or is it that, like an old war horse, he finds it impossible to ignore the trumpet which signals a political clash on his favorite battleground?

Whatever the reason, even his political foes will hope that Mr. Bennett's return to the fray — when he could so easily have gone quietly away to respected retirement — will not end in pathos.

Political Hands Across the Border

In his efforts to challenge Mr. Nixon's apparent lead in a desultory campaign, Sen. George McGovern has been appealing to the ideals of his countrymen. Recently in Cleveland he spoke of relations between the United States and other countries, notably Canada. Said the South Dakotan: "We are isolated from our trading partners in Europe and Asia — and even from Canada — because of our six-gun economic diplomacy and failure to consult." A task force of academics and former diplomats is at work on a detailed position for the Senator on the improvement of relations between the U.S. and Canada.

There is movement on both sides of the border towards closer co-operation, or at least consulatation, on economic matters. One need only cite the proposal for a joint U.S.-Canada economic commission. Outstanding issues between our two countries, such as the auto pact, defence sharing, tourist spending and energy resources might, in Finance Minister Turner's words, be resolved "within a couple of months," if the Trudeau and Nixon administrations are returned.

At this point Canadians would be hard put to decide if a McGovern administration would be more in Canada's interest than the present Nixon one. After all, there is a continuity to American policy regardless of the particular incumbent. A judgment on the preferability of Nixon or McGovern will have to await the McGovern position paper giving flesh to the Senator's "new internationalism" announced in Cleveland.

Wasted Effort

It hardly merits a public referendum, but a unanimous recommendation of silence could be predicted in regard to the petty verbal feud which Victoria's Mayor Pollen appears to find necessary in his relations with his neighboring colleague, Mayor Curtis of Saanich.

At the beginning of his term as head of the Victoria council, Mayor Pollen set a good example of considered statements and effective action. He also appeared to be achieving a mutually valuable degree of co-operation with Mayor Curtis on matters affecting both municipalities. But recent months have seen a rapid degeneration of this relationship into petty name-calling and waspish jibes which are a source of recurring pain in the necks of the electorate.

Such Billingsgate and poison-tongue criticism — each attack apparently demanding a defence — are unworthy, fruitless and not what any mayor was elected for. Mayor Pollen in particular could perform a welcome public service by getting back to his own responsibilities, busy but tight-lipped, as he began his term.

Hard Lesson

The tragi-comedy of Privy Council President Allan MacEachen arriving at a Guysborough, N.S., hall for an election meeting to which 1,500 invitations had been mailed, only to find that he was alone in knowing the event was scheduled, has its own value. The invitations, explained the embarrassed postmaster, had gone astray: "We found them in Antigonish under an empty mailbag which had been droppd on top of them."

At least the President of the Privy Council should now appreciate how Canadians in general feel about their increasingly costly mail service.

A Substantial Built-In Bias

TORONTO — Handicapping elections is like figuring out the morning line on the ponies. You gotta study the form sheet.

And the form sheet for this federal election says that the chances of the Conservatives beating the Liberals are no better than one in three.

Statistically, this election should be an easy romp for the Liberals, which is rather how they viewed it from the starting gate. They've been running scared ever since but that's campaign pressure; they are not in as much trouble as they think they are.

The reason is that our political system has a substantial built-in bias for the "Ins" over the "Outs". A government has to be very bad indeed, and the alternative extremely atttractive, before a change can take place. To put it another way, it is much easier to get re-elected than to get elected.

Sen. George McGovern is currently discovering this in the United States, where President Nixon is as good as re-elected without even campaigning. The Americans have at least recognized the problem by placing a two-term limit on their Presidents but in Canada longevity is the rule and short-term governments the exception.

Odds Against Conservatives

There have been 27 national elections since Confederation and in only nine of them has the government of the day been defeated. On the record, that makes Robert Stanfield and his Conservative candidates two-to-one underdogs. The odds are even worse when it is considered that on only four occasions have the voters turned out a Liberal administration.

This is not only a federal phenomenon. There have been 228 provincial elections in Canada since Confederation and in only 57 of them, or 25 per cent, has the government been defeated. The most volatile province has been little Prince Edward Island, with 10 turnovers in 28 elections. Manitoba has had only three switches at the polls in 29 times.

There have been six Ontario governments defeated at the polls in 28 elections; in Quebec, seven in 28; British Columbia, eight in 29; Alberta, three in 16; Saskatchewan, five in 16; New Brunswick, nine in 27; Nova Scotia, six in 27; and Newfoundland, one in six.

One qualification must be placed on these statistics: There have been a number of occasions, particularly in the early days, when the "Ins" resigned and the "Outs" took over between elections. The famous federal instance, of course, was when Mackenzie King was replaced by the second Meighen administration of 1926, which the Liberals then defeated at the polls.

The more usual result of such between-election changes, however, was that the voters in effect approved of the switch when they got the chance, and the generality still holds — Canadians tend to love their governments and to keep a party in power rather than to vote it out.

About the only encouraging feature in this for the Conservatives this time is that a change is about due.

PREMIER DAVIS
. . . Camp's focus

But longevity in Canadian politics is not merely a statistical abstraction. It is the inevitable result of the political system itself. The "In" party, after all, goes into the election as the government; even if it is vulnerable on its record, it still has an automatic prestige advantage and it can maintain that prestige by announcing new reforms and new programs right up to election day.

The "Outs", on the other hand, are the "opposition" and there is something faintly offensive, if not treasonable, about them. They are attacking the government the voters voted in and they are in effect asking the voters to admit they made a mistake and not to repeat it.

Indeed, the psychological and structural advantages in favor of the governing party are so great that many politicians are concluding that with modern communication and propaganda techniques there is no reason, given a modicum of common sense, why a political party can't stay in power for ever.

The old fundamental of politics used to be that governments are defeated, not elected: that sooner or later, they make enough enemies to be voted out of office. But that maxim appears to have little validity today. Social Credit lasted in Alberta as long as E. C. Manning wanted it to last; old age defeated Smallwood in Newfoundland and Bennett in British Columbia; and in Ontario, the Conservatives have discovered the secret of eternal life by doing the minimum, changing their leader every 10 years or so, consulting the image-makers and spending a fortune at election time.

To defeat a government today requires, it would appear, two essentials: a government record bad enough that no amount of propaganda or promises to reform can quite gloss it over, and an alternative leader and party who can transform public resentment against the government into positive votes on their behalf.

Neither of these essentials would seem to be present in this election in sufficient degree to defeat the government. Perhaps public resentment, at least in Ontario, is high enough but there is no beneficiary of it. The almost universal report from the Conservative and NDP canvassers (and the Liberals too, if they're honest about it) is that people are mad against the Liberals but not mad for Mr. Stanfield.

Not Going to Make It

Ironically, Mr. Stanfield is earning plaudits for an efficient, effective campaign but the general assumption is he's not going to make it and everybody knows it, including the top Tories. The possibility of succeeding Mr. Stanfield, for example, was undoubtedly a factor in Allan Lawrence's leaving the Ontario government to run federally in Northumberland-Durham and Claude Wagner, when asked if he would try to replace Mr. Stanfield, replied: "For the time being, I am only trying to get elected . . ."

And now we have Premier William Davis as well, urging all-out support for Mr. Stanfield from his Conservative organization in Ontario and flying off to help the cause in Alberta and New Brunswick. It is an unusual step (the last Ontario premier to involve himself federally was George Drew in 1945) and it must mean something; the obvious guess is that Mr. Davis too has his eye on Mr. Stanfield's job.

A more likely guess is that Dalton Camp has Mr. Davis' eye on Mr. Stanfield's job — the same Dalton Camp who arranged for the dumping of John Diefenbaker, promoted Robert Stanfield to replace him and ever since has been holding William Davis in the wings. Mr. Camp knows a loser when he sees one.

The Fable of the Elephant

WASHINGTON — Once upon a time there was a big elephant who ruled over the animal kingdom for four long years, surveying the universe from his big flying machine, appearing occasionally on television and preaching the gospel of peace, prosperity, law and order.

Now this was a pretty restless time. The other big elephants were doing all right and the fat cats were dining on cream and honey. Everything looked fairly good, particularly the cute chicks who had long hair and very short skirts, but a lot of the little animals were in trouble, and some of them were even hungry.

So one day a little donkey from the prairies came along and said he thought the animal kingdom needed a new leader, for example, himself, and the No. 1 elephant just laughed and laughed.

Words and Facts

"Look at the facts," the donkey said. "The elephant talks of peace, but there is no peace. He talks of prosperity, but over five million animals are out of work. He boasts about good times but the mice are paying 20 per cent more for cheese. He promised to bring the lions and the lambs together, but the lions ate up all the lambs and even the tigers are scared to go out in the forest after dark."

"Listen to the jackass," said the elephant. "I won't reply to this rubbish, but I will say this: Who made peace with the bear? Who flew to the very middle of the animal kingdom and tamed the dragon? Who saved half a million grunts from the great swamp where they were sinking when I took over the kingdom?"

At this all the elephants began waving their trunks and shouting, "Four More Years," and the jackals joined in and began barking at the donkeys, and the bears and the dragons nodded their heads and swished their tails.

"I have been misrepresented by the monkeys," the No. 1 elephant continued. "They go around chattering against me in the night. They call me names, and I have big ears. They publish their slanders on every tree in the forest, and the elephant remembers."

"Eight More Years," roared the bears, who were lolling at the edge of the forest gobbling cheap wheat. "Twelve More Years," insisted the fat cats.

The elephant threw his trunk over one tusk, wiped the TV make-up off his face and grinned. "I don't say everything is perfect in the animal kingdom. There has been some living around here. I have seen the long-haired dogs in the poppy patch. I have seen the roosters chasing the chicks, and even vice versa. And there is crime and profiteering and unemployment.

"Four More Years"

"But these are not the important things. All animals must learn to see things as the elephant sees them: from on high. If you are hungry, you must realize that most animals are not hungry. If you are old and sick you must understand that most animals are not old and sick. It is the generality of things that counts. The lions may be eating the lambs, but the rate of lamb-eating has gone down two-tenths of 1 per cent in the last four years, and who can match that?" (Cries of "Sixteen More Years.")

"I can," brayed the donkey and demanded equal time. "The elephant remembers what he wants to remember," the donkey said. "A hungry doe can't eat the gross animal product. A lamb in the claws of a lion can't concentrate on the declining rate of the lion's appetite. It has to think about the decline of lambs.

'Any Jackass Knows'

"Any jackass knows that. The elephant says he made peace with the bear and tamed the dragon and rescued the grunts, but the bear took our grain and is still helping to kill the grunts. He didn't tame them, he bribed them, and what did the mice around here get out of all that?

"The elephant is deceiving you. He covers up his blunders. He works with the bugs to spy on the donkeys in the night. He makes deals with the bears at our expense. The survival of the fittest kingdom has been replaced by the triumph of the trickiest. What this forest needs is a good honest clumsy jackass."

But the snakes hissed and the bears growled and the lions roared and the fat cats merely grinned, and most of the animals cheered the elephant, and their cries shook the forest. "Twenty More Years," they shouted. "Make it forty," roared the jackals, and the elephant smiled and winked at the fat cats.

FROM OUR READERS

Program

If I were prime minister of Canada, my program would be to first try to reinstate those principles and values upon which this nation was built — which brought the provinces together some 100 years ago; which brought us unity, prosperity and international integrity, not to mention one of the highest standards of living in the world.

In re-dedicating the Canadian people to the ideals of freedom and liberty, I hold that citizens might then also appreciate the value of our democratic institutions, respecting the law, other peoples' rights and the concept of good social order.

If I were prime minister, I would govern by way of encouraging accountability, self-reliance and self respect instead of the slavery of welfare, sloth, greed and hand-outs. I would promote the right of all men to aspire to the extent of their desire and capabilities, without government hindering their effort. I would place honor above hauteur, discipline over desire, dedication before demonstration and right before "rights."

My Canada would be green with hope rather than green with envy, imbued with pride of purpose rather than pride of permissiveness. I would call for the unity of one nation under God, recognizing in all humility that but for the grace of God, there would be no Canada, no unity and no democratic election for any Prime Minister or House of Commons.— Patricia Young, Vancouver B.C.

Call for Comment

May we logically expect some comment from the Greater Victoria School Board on two items which appeared in your issue of October 11?

The reported "discovery" of a $180,000 budgetary surplus after the original budget, following defeat of the $412,000 operating referendum, adequately covered forecast expenditures.

One might question the financial accountability of the board; such errors in budgetting in the private sector would call for quick remedial action.

Miss Kathy Ferguson's remarks to the School Board about drug counselling will come as a shock to the public as well as to administrators.

It may be difficult, however, for the Board and counselling staff to leave the quiet opulence of Foul Bay Road to look into the problem at the school level. — F. E. Wright, 993 Karen Crescent.

From the Times of October 17, 1912:

NANAIMO — Bronzed with long exposure, but remarkably fit and well after his tremendous journey, T. W. Wilby, the pathfinder of the National Motor Highway Association, stepped ashore from the Princess Patricia yesterday afternoon to embark on the last leg of his journey from Atlantic to Pacific. He has passed through mud and bog, climbed mountains and hills to which roads are yet unknown, and his speedometer has ticked over 4,000 miles without the slightest accident or mechanical trouble befalling the Reo car which he has driven from ocean to ocean.

Peru Taking Surprising Reform Road

By JOSEPH NOVI
New York Times

LIMA, Peru — It is one thing to try to remake a society with decrees promulgated and enforced by concentrated power, which the Peruvian military government has surprised South America by doing for the last four years.

It is a different matter to try to make the reforms take root by involving the people in them and then turning over power to the people. This is what military leaders propose to do in Peru, beginning this year and ending sometime in the indefinite future.

The Peruvian officers and their civilian assistants, now marking their fourth anniversary in power, say the process will not be quick or easy. It means upsetting a social order that is 400 years old by educating, training and bringing to power the country's Andean Indians, comprising more than half the population of 13.5 million, who have survived four centuries of national history without a voice in shaping it.

On the cold, high peaks and plateaus of the Andes, where the wind cuts like seven knives whether it is dry or snow-laden, some Indian communities seem unaware of the government's plans. Where they are aware, they seem wary.

"There never was much politics in the Indian communities, voting-type politics," said Jesus Yarasca, president of the administrative council of Chacapalpa, a tight sheepherding community of 300 families that clings to a saddle 13,200 feet up in the mountains.

"Whatever government came, we just had to suffer along with it. Now we have the military. They changed the agrarian reform law and the Indian communities law, but we still run our community ourselves, the way we always have."

His wariness is not unusual. After four years, all but a relative handful of Peruvians still do not know exactly what to make of their highly unusual military regime. Some, particularly on the political right and the extreme left beyond the Communist party, but also in the nonpolitical middle class, question the government's reform commitment.

Legal Changes

However, there is the evidence of an agrarian reform program that has covered much of the country, industrial and mining reform laws, and the nationalization of a majority of banking capital, communications and electric power.

It seems to have established that the Peruvian military elite did not seize power to maintain the old social order, no matter how firmly they seem to stop short of all-out revolution and to maintain law and order by their new rules.

"It was all surprising, coming from the military," said a professional revolutionary, a Marxist-Leninist who broke from his splinter party two years ago and now works for the government as an organizer and agricultural economist.

The Revolutionary government of the Armed Forces has laid down a grid of formal, legal changes that have eliminated most of the old Peruvian power groups based on land, banks, foreign trade and the big newspapers.

Institutions like private property and freedom of expression in the press have suffered and the medium investors and professional men who moved up to take the place of the traditional elite for the most part seem to find themselves in wary opposition to the government.

The military has changed the course of Peru's economic development from capitalism to an unsettled mixture of state socialism and independent co-operatives formed on military orders. They have broken away from past political dependence on the U.S., but discovered that diplomatic and trade relations with China and Cuba do not fundamentally change the realities of economic dependence.

New Mentality

The governing military officers carry themselves proudly at international conferences. They know they started the current trend to aggressive nationalism in South America by expropriating the International Petroleum Company, owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, in their first week of government and refusing to pay compensation for its properties. They know they are admired in Latin America for what has been called the new military mentality, a kind of planned, authoritarian approach to long-overdue social reform.

All those changes make the Peruvian government very different from past military dictatorships in South America. But it is a dictatorship, decreeing changes from the top that have not yet sunk very far into Peruvian Society. Laws have a way of floating near the surface of Latin American societies, where the next change of government can reverse or ignore them.

However, this year the Peruvian military has made a commitment to change the people to fit the legal framework it has made, and to create what it calls "a social democracy with full participation," or "a new society, just, humanistic and sharing." The ideology, always hard to pin down on the traditional political spectrum, might now be called unvarnished idealism.

"We believe that it is the very people who must organize themselves in the ways they want to solve their own problems," Brig. Gen. Jose Graham Hurtado said in the course of a recent interview. Graham commands the military advisory committee to President Juan Velasco, also an army general, and that committee drafts all the government's legislation.

"Sinamos (meaning 'national system to support social mobilization') is meant to break up the indifference, the crippling passivity of the Peruvian people," Graham said. That passivity is identified with the Indians, the direct descendants of the subjects of the Inca empire who became the subjects of the Spanish conquest and then the subjects of a national elite.

Profits Invested

Probably the best example in the country of how the military's unusual ideology and its cautious revolution works in practice is a huge sheep ranching complex in the high Andes east of Lima. It is a hybrid blend of seven modern, efficient ranches and 16 backward Indian communities, called "The Tupac Amaru Agricultural Society of Social Purpose."

The complex, covering 540,000 usable acres and supporting 3,026 families, is usually called simply "La Sais Tupac Amaru."

The basic idea is that all the ranches, expropriated from the Cerro de Pasco Corp., produce at their efficient and profitable best. The profits are invested in social and economic development projects in the 16 surrounding Indian communities.

Thus, the theorists explain, the social purpose of agrarian reform is served without actually having to divide up the land into small peasant holdings that would cause meat and wool production to drop catastrophically.

Economically, the scheme to put profits into roads, medical services, new breeding rams and training courses for the Indian communities is working. The aims of ranching have changed, so have the owners. Indian men, wearing somber wool suits, wool sweaters and open-necked shirts, represent their communities on ranch councils with great formality.

They also clown a bit and drink beer with the management on long Sundays when the communities meet for soccer matches. But the underlying social structure has not changed.

R. Rizo Patron, the manager hired by the society, is tall and white-skinned, and the members of the society who work under him invariably murmur his agronomist's title, "Ongeniero" respectfully, before speaking to him.

"We cannot change a 400 year-old system in just the two or three years we have been here," Patron says. "What is really important, for me, is knowing that you're trying and that you, personally, are making a difference."

Andean Indians are unaware or wary of changes

LIFE AND DEATH

THE SUN
An Editorial

A public declaration by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that he remains opposed to the death penalty is welcome, especially since it was smoked out during an election campaign.

For too long Canadian politicians have practised ambivalence and procrastination on this issue, reluctant to speak out and risk the imagined wrath of the electorate.

There is a lot of strong feeling on the subject in Canada, and some agitators for "an eye for an eye." But, as Mr. Trudeau pointed out at Trois Riviers, nowhere has it been proved that capital punishment is an effective deterrent.

One of the first items of business for the government elected on Oct. 30, whether it be Mr. Trudeau's or somebody else's government, is to bring this matter of life and death before Parliament, because the five-year "trial" abolition of hanging expires at the end of the year.

In fact no one has been executed for murder in a decade, not even the killer of a policeman or prison guard — the two capital offences retained.

Anyone in Parliament who really believes this was a trial, then, is being unrealistic, if not a hypocrite.

Mr. Trudeau implied that he would again offer the Commons a free vote, because it is "a problem of conscience."

But it is difficult to imagine how Canada could revert, rationally, to the death penalty. Such a regression would certainly run against the trend of the world.

'An Honest Witness'

By KENNETH BAGNELL
The Globe and Mail

To those who have never met him Mordecai Richler casts an image of a professional gadfly, trafficking in whatever is outrageous and intemperate.

They'd be surprised, as I was when I first met him, to find a man not just sober, but almost solemn. He speaks carefully, honestly hopeful that he will not offer the simple judgment for the complicated problem.

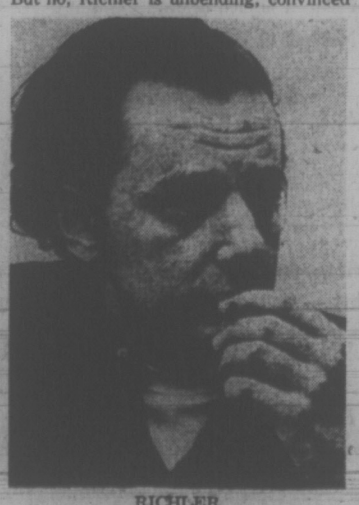
That's the way he was the other day when we sat in the Park Plaza, talking about Canadian nationalism on which he has taken a position at odds with the moods that prevail in parts of the literary life of Canada. He said a lot of what he's said on nationalism has been misunderstood. And so, in an effort at helping our understanding, here are the views on nationalism of one of our cleverest and perhaps most honest writers.

He's not against economic nationalism. He respects Walter Gordon. He likes what he has read of Walter Gordon's views on foreign investment. But from there on, the line is drawn.

He can't stand cultural nationalism, at least when it is expressed in the strident tones that he finds more and more common. "What makes economic sense," he said, "very quickly can make cultural nonsense. I'm very concerned about this because there are a lot of mediocre people who are on this bandwagon and it is simply self-serving."

He says that no really good Canadian writer should worry for a hearing for, after all, he or she writes in English and the market for writers in English is vast. Compared with the Turkish writer, or the Czech or the Finn, "Canadians are not so limited. And if we are not published internationally it is not because there is some cabal against Canadian writers. it's simply that they aren't good enough."

Perhaps it is easy to talk this way, too easy for a man who has already achieved in the literary fields abroad. But no, Richler is unbending, convinced that there is too much self-pity among Canadian writers. "The Canada Council has more money at its disposal than the British Arts Council. But there are more deserving writers in England who can't get that kind of money whereas here, if you show a whisper of promise, there's money. That's okay. But then, there's no excuse to complain."



RICHLER
. . . some fresh air

He has said, as many know, some critical things of Maclean's Magazine, persuaded it reflects the very kind of cultural nationalism he decries. "It has attached its faltering star to nationalism in a very heavy way. It's not so much a magazine now as a kind of supra-nationalistic chamber of commerce handout." That's hard. And Richler is very comfortable admitting he may be wrong.

"I've always tried," he said, pushing his heavy palms through the tangles of black, shiny hair, "to be an honest witness. That's all I've got to give." Is he not, by being so harsh on Maclean's, burning a bridge that, well, he might yet want to cross? "It's not as intrepid as it seems," he said, "for after all I'm not dependent on Canadian magazines."

To Richler, cultural nationalism is a subtle thing and if it comes it will not be by denouncing American professors or curators or police chiefs who are invited to work here. "Cultural independence will come with a much larger population." But he is opposed to any thought of quotas on American professors in our universities or American books in our shops. "I welcome outside views on our culture. It brings fresh air to the subject."

'Somebody Around Here Doesn't Want Democracy'

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

Mrs. Kay Worden is a Weston, Mass., housewife who feels deeply about the Vietnam war. During the Republican convention she put a mildly phrased advertisement in the Miami Herald asking people to write to President Nixon about the war. She also took a room in the Hotel Fontainebleau and said in the ad that she would be there to talk to anyone interested.

Funny things happened when people tried to telephone Mrs. Worden at the Fontainebleau. Some were told that there was no such person in the hotel. Others were asked whether they were calling in response to the ad, and told they could not be connected unless they answered the question. Somehow not many callers got through. A hotel official, when asked about the business, spoke of "security."

Mrs. Worden has had legal advice since then, and she plans shortly to bring a suit against the hotel, the Republican party and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Her claim will be that they monitored her telephone calls and harassed the callers.

When she talks about the affair, she sounds more puzzled than angry. She says she just wants to find out who was doing what: "If asking people to write to the President is a danger to security, then somebody around here doesn't want democracy."

If officials of the government or the Republican party were in fact involved in the Kay Worden episode, it would hardly be surprising. For one of the most significant qualities of the Nixon Administration is its insensitivity in matters of personal liberty.

Wiretapping is one example. The Justice Department had made a point of the small number of wiretapping authorizations it has sought and obtained from the courts — 285 in the year 1971. But those are the taps under law. What is more interesting is the tapping done without any legal authority — until recently under a claim of inherent national security power that the Supreme Court unanimously rejected.

No one knows how many telephones had been tapped or how many conversations overheard in the name of security — no statistics are published. But enough of this activity surfaces from time to time in court cases to suggest that it is substantial.

On a number of occasions recently the Justice Department has chosen not to proceed with a case rather than to disclose the facts of its wiretapping. When asked to provide a list of these, the department, over a week, did not give an answer. But the press has reported at least half a dozen examples in the last three months.

In July the government dropped assault charges against a leader in 1971 anti-war demonstrations, Bradford Lyttle; prosecutors said Lyttle had been overheard in several electronic surveillances that they did not want to disclose. A case against Abbie Hoffman was dismissed for similar reasons, and so was one against three "white panthers."

In August the Justice Department abandoned a perjury prosecution of Leslie Bacon, who had been questioned by a grand jury about the 1971 bombing of the Capitol. It did so when asked to disclose any electronic surveillance of Miss Bacon

In September the contempt charges against Bobby Seale arising out of the Chicago conspiracy trial were dropped; the U.S. Attorney in Chicago explained that it would be "inimical to our national security" to let Seale's lawyers see transcripts of electronic eavesdropping on him.

And a Federal Court of Appeals dismissed contempt charges against four antiwar veterans who had refused to testify before a grand jury; the court acted, it said, when the government failed to deny the use of illegal telephone taps on the men.

These published instances sound like the tip of an iceberg of electronic surveillance on alleged security grounds. And of course we know also that in Daniel Ellsberg's case tapping intruded into the essential privacy of the relationship between a defendant and his advisers — and that Republicans right up into the White House did not hesitate to tap and physically invade Democratic headquarters.

Wiretapping is only one area of insensitivity to the right of privacy and civil liberties generally. Another of great gravity is the Administration's attitude toward the press and publishing.

The Nixon Justice Department has called reporters before grand juries, and scholars, to an extent that disturbs many sober men. It has taken the extraordinary step of harassing the Beacon Press, a respected publishing house, for publishing a text of the Pentagon Papers after the Government Printing Office issued its version. Other examples of pressure and intimidation abound.

For all these reasons, the outlook for individual liberty in the U.S. must be regarded as a fundamental issue in the election campaign. It is not one that is much articulated, or perhaps that can be, but many people are nevertheless aware of its implicit significance.

A President has enormous influence on the state of American Liberty. He sets a tone of concern or contempt by his own discourse. Most important, he makes the appointments to the Supreme Court that will define the constitution long after he has left office. The most disturbing prospect in a second term for Richard Nixon is his likely choice of the prosecutors to police us and the judges to expound our freedoms.

CURTIS LOSES ON RINK VOTE

Saanich council Monday voted 5-4 to place a new hockey rink referendum before ratepayers at the earliest opportunity despite vigorous opposition by the mayor.

"I regret council is divided, with the tightest possible split," said Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Ald. Frank Waring called the motion a pig in a poke: "I want to know what this ice sheet is going to cost."

"I regret I've been forced to vote against an ice surface because I've been pushed," said Ald. Edith Gunning, who supported the view that details should be provided first.

The same five members of council who passed the recommendation of municipal indoor recreation committee also voted to request from committee a report on cost, type and location of a new ice surface "at the earliest possible oppotrunity."

Those in favor of pressing the rink issue were aldermen Leslie Passmore, chairman of the committee; Alan Newberry, William Noel, Fred Severson and Ed Lum.

Opposed with Curtis, Waring and Gunning was Ald. William Campbell, who stressed that council agreed early in the year to placing a capital roads and drainage bylaw before ratepayers.

He said he was surprised that the committee, which was following the urging of Saanich Minor Hockey Association, had made its recommendation without discussing the matter in council.

Campbell recalled 400-500 calls received at the municipal yard last winter on flooding problems.

He was afraid if council put both ice surface and roads-drainage bylaws before ratepayers in December, both would be lost. Campbell said he would support a later arena bylaw.

At Passmore's instigation an amendment to the recommendation was put forward, which would have changed the timing from December to "the earliest opportunity," for borrowing money necessary for building a new ice surface.

The amendment was carried with Curtis, Campbell, Waring and Gunning opposed.

Gunning said it seemed as if council had forgotten its capital roads-drains bylaw. When she was out in last year's flooding she "saw a lot of human misery in this municipality" with homes and belongings damaged.

Curtis said he was sorry the committee had used this approach to the problem, that by dividing council it was sending the referendum to defeat.

"I don't want to see that . . . and no one in this room really wants that," he said.

He said he regretted being placed on the "other side of the fence" from minor hockey, with "the swimmers, the people with flooded basements, the people who use the bumpy roads."

Ald. Passmore observed it is not council's decision to pass on a new rink, rather it is up to the ratepayers. He said hockey is the only sport in which the municipality debars citizens from playing.

"We can wait on a soccer field, a football field, a tennis court, but we can't wait on an ice arena."

Newberry asked if it is still the council's intention to place a works bylaw before ratepayers in December.

Curtis asked administrator John Tribe to reply, and Tribe, noting that major trouble spots had been taken care of with higher roads-drainage appropriations in 1972, pointed out that a series of cost-shared projects via local improvement initiative had been recalled.

Minor hockey association secretary Bruce Naylor said there are more than 170 boys on the waiting list for entry to teams in the Saanich league, with more added daily.

Bug-Riddling 'Not Saanich's Fault'

A distraught woman whose house was infested by termites, carpenter ants and powder post beetles was advised by Saanich council Monday to seek legal help in recovering repair costs.

Mrs. C. D. Thompson, 5379 Parker, was invited to speak by Mayor Hugh Curtis after a letter to council from the woman and her husband described insect damage discovered after they occupied the house July 15, 1971.

She said home buyers should have some protection against such situations: "I would like to think there could be some law to protect people from this."

Curtis said individual members of council would be available to hear the full details privately if Mrs. Thompson wished and asked solicitor Douglas Patterson if the municipality had any responsibility.

Patterson said the municipality had no legal right to involve itself, that it was a matter between the buyer and vendor of the property. He said it would be worthwhile for the Thompsons to consult a solicitor.

"I'd go after the people who sold the house," suggested Ald. William Campbell.

$2,000 REPAIRS

The letter described how carpenter ants had eaten their way into the bathroom of the 31-year-old dwelling, and carpenter ants, powder post beetles and termites infested another room, making necessary a $2,000 reconstruction. A storage shed was too far gone to be saved and was demolished.

When an exterminator was called he found it impossible to fully inspect the dwelling because the crawl space was too small and Thompson proceeded to dig it out by hand.

When the space was large enough the inspection was done and floor joists, plates and flooring were found to be eaten away. It was also discovered that stumps had been left in the ground beneath the house, there was no drainage and inadequate ventilation.

A municipal inspector said the house had been erected prior to adoption of national building code requirements when there were no standards for dwelling construction in Saanich.

He suggested persons buying houses who are not themselves competent to judge soundness of the building should engage a competen contractor to examine premises.

When she and her husband took occupancy there was no inspection made, Mrs. Thompson said.

"Being just average citizens we never thought that such a thing could happen to anyone in this day and age, she said.

The couple had paid $50 for an appraisal at the time of their mortgage application and the trust company which had the responsibility has still not replied to Thompson's request to know who appraised the house.

Mrs. Thompson said the experience was "so devastating" people would have no idea until going through it. The family had spent three months in an apartment while damage was attended to because "there was no way of sleeping in it."

"Did you consult a lawyer?" Curtis asked.

The woman said no, she and her husband were so distraught about the house their only thought was repairing it.

A pest controller also spoke to council:

"When I crawled in there I found termites all over the place and carpenter ants, too."

He was reminded the house was built in 1947.

"But I can tell you it exists in new houses, too," the exterminator said, offering to show council a five-year-old house on Lyall Street in Esquimalt.

Mrs. Thompson said she was prepared to write off the monetary aspect — "It's the moral issue," she said.

Saanich Job Candidates Down to 7

Candidates for the Saanich post of municipal administrator were narrowed to seven before weekend interviews conducted by the mayor and most members of council.

Local and outside applicants are being considered, Mayor Hugh Curtis said Monday, but a decision had not been made and further interviewing may be required.

The choice, he said, would be the result of council deliberation and not just that of members of the personnel committee.

Closed-session interviewing was done all day Friday and Saturday.

Earlier, candidates had been selected from more than 90 applications, following advertisements for the post to be vacated Jan. 31 by John Tribe.

1 of 6 Gets By Council

One out of six development applications was referred to a public hearing by Saanich council Monday. Three were rejected and two tabled until the end of the year.

The action prompted Ald. Fred Severson to remark: "I'm not saying we've done the wrong thing, but it's unfortunate that we're turning industry away."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said it was unfortunate that applications continue to apply outside the sewered area.

"We don't want industry in Saanich at any cost. This is primarily a residential community," Ald. Alan Newberry said.

In trying to accommodate industrial applicants, Saanich has found itself faced with problems, "not the least of which is outraged citizens," said Newberry.

One of those put off was Dominion Construction Co. Ltd., of Vancouver, which envisages a $5 million general wholesale-warehouse distribution centre on nine acres off Mann Avenue, Royal Oak.

Council adopted a recommendation from Advisory Planning Commission that a decision be put over until a special study committee on industrial - commercial requirements reports before the end of the year.

SPECIAL TRIP

Doug Sutcliffe, Dominion's general manager of B.C. operations, said he had made a special trip to support the application and that a "high quality distribution centre" was planned.

Although it was outside the sewered area he understood the site has soil conditions allowing septic disposal.

An application by Stanley E. Tront, 1010 Blanshard, to rezone 5.2 acres on Vanalman between Glanford and Northridge subdivision for wholesale-warehouse use was tabled for the same reason.

A public hearing will be called for an application by Victoria Construction Ltd. to rezone a block of land on Shelbourne between Midgard and Earlston for medium density apartments.

Rejected bids were for 1.6 acres at 4885 Cherry Tree Bend by Marcus Ell, of that address, to motel use; 3.3 acres east of Patricia Bay Highway and immediately south of Fatt's poultry farm by Wheaton Construction Ltd. to warehouse and forest products use; and 21,000 square feet of land at 4062 Shelbourne by Seaboard Construction Ltd. to general commercial use.

In other business council accepted bids of $17,925 by United Engineering Ltd. for steel superstructure and $7,097 by K. J. Howe Ltd. for substructure and deck of a new pedestrian and service crossing of Colquitz River near Trans-Canada Highway.

The combined cost of $25,022 is more than $3,000 cheaper than a previous low bid for the whole project.

Also accepted was a bid by Farmer Construction Ltd. to build the Battin Fielding memorial housing project for multiple sclerosis patients and other handicapped persons on 6.6 acres on Vernon Avenue for $1.173 million, the lowest of three bids.

Power Plans for Island Don't Include N-Plant

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The future of power development for Vancouver Island has now become very clear.

—There will be a coal-fired thermal power plant constructed on the Island, perhaps as a major source of electricity and at least as a back-up capacity in the event of failure of main power links to the mainland.

—The provincial government is hoping to proceed with transmission of power from the mainland on overhead lines as the cheapest source of electricity available for the Island.

The only drawback to overhead transmission is the possibility of power failures, especially in winter months, but the supporting capacity of the thermal plant would assure power for the Island.

There is a sharp division of opinion within New Democratic Party ranks as to the merits of nuclear power but the main spokesmen of the party — including Premier Dave Barrett — are against it.

Also firmly opposed is Highways Minister Robert Strachan, an Island cabinet minister who has said he would never agree to a nuclear power plant on the Island.

The other Island cabinet minister is David Stupich, agriculture, from Nanaimo where the Chamber of Commerce has been waging an energetic campaign for a nuclear plant there.

Stupich on Monday said he has "very grave reservations" about the safety of a nuclear plant.

Stupich is also provincial president of the NDP which has its provincial convention coming up Nov. 24. Although there is a difference of opinion within the party, a floor fight on the issue is not expected.

In any case the party has at its disposal a neat compromise. The government policy is to watch nuclear power developments in other countries before proceeding. With a coal-fired thermal plant, there is no immediate need for nuclear power.

The coal-fired plant was a major recommendation of Jack Sexton, vice-president of Montreal Engineering, who was a consultant to the B.C. Energy Board.

Sexton, and the provincial government, have judged natural gas to be too expensive a fuel to be used in producing thermal electricity, a decision which cancels the main reason for a natural gas pipeline to the Island.

Premier Barrett says he refuses to make any comment whatsoever on the prospects of the proposed natural gas pipeline, but one of the main reasons for the proposal was the possibility gas would be used in a thermal plant here.

Without a thermal plant as customer, a natural gas pipeline would produce a tremendous burden of debt for B.C. Hydro and from a provincial viewpoint would be difficult to justify in financial terms.

Meanwhile, Manitoba Hydro chairman David Cass-Beggs will neither confirm nor deny he will take over as chairman of B.C. Hydro when Dr. Gordon Shrum retires at year's end.

Any announcement, he said, would have to come from the British Columbia government.

Announcement of the new B.C. Hydro chairman is expected to be made this week during the special session of the legislature, which opened today.

Shrum was paid $40,000 per year when he started 12 years ago but has never been given a pay raise.

The new chairman will get an increase, likely to about $50,000. At present Cass-Beggs, 64, gets $35,000 per year with Manitoba Hydro.

Born in England, Cass-Beggs came to Canada in 1939 and taught courses involving power systems at University of Toronto. He worked on the National Research Council of Canada during the war.

He served as consultant to the Saskatchewan Power Corporation and became manager of the corporation in 1955. In 1965, after the defeat of the NDP and election of the Liberals, he was fired.

In 1969 he was hired by the NDP government of Manitoba as a power consultant and at the end of the year was appointed chairman of Manitoba Hydro.

Shipments Slump Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturers' shipments totalled $4.26 billion in August, recovering from a July slump when shipments totalled $3.99 billion, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

August shipments were up 7.5 per cent from July and showed a 6.6-per-cent gain over August, 1971, shipments totalling $4.03 billion.

The statistics bureau said that on a seasonally adjusted basis, August shipments showed a gain of eighty tenths of one per cent over July, with durable goods shipments rising 4.1 per cent and non-durables declining 2.1 per cent.

Auto Prices Guaranteed

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. said today it will guarantee prices on 1973 model cars and trucks until further notice.

The guarantee means that buyers placing an order for delivery when the unit is available will be protected against price increases.

American Motors Canada Ltd. and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. earlier announced a price guarantee until Oct. 31.

Prices for 1973 models have been in a state of uncertainty because the major manufacturers have asked the price commission in the United States for price increases. A decision is not expected until after the Nov. 7 U.S. election.

Growth Money: How three businesses found it.

Printer inks a merger agreement.
The owner of the small printing firm, with $250,000 volume, needed credit to complete the take-over of another company. Bank of Montreal financed part of his purchase price and also provided a new line of credit to support the increase in his sales volume.

Flexibility for growing stamping plant.
A metal stamping plant with $1,500,000 in sales was feeling growth pains. Some machinery needed replacing and they wished to expand their premises. Bank of Montreal advanced a medium-term loan geared to cash flow and repayment from earnings.

Young plastics company with $575,000 sales volume seeks expansion.
Orders were coming in faster than they could be filled. The company decided to move to a larger plant. They found their location but needed money to close the deal. We came through with interim financing fast.

Player Backs Fired Coach

BALTIMORE (CP) — Centre Bill Curry criticized the firing Monday of Don McCafferty, contending the head coach of Baltimore Colts had been improperly blamed for the team's losing record.

"Mac is a decent man and a talented coach," Curry said, "and the way he has been treated is a real injustice."

Curry also rapped Joe Thomas, Baltimore's new general manager, who fired McCafferty Monday, replaced him with defensive line coach John Sandusky, and said the Colts would "sort of start a new regime with young players."

Noting Thomas had announced that the dismissal of McCafferty was made "for the good of the team," Curry said: "That's the same general manager who hasn't bothered to go around and meet all the guys and learn their names."

"I know I'm sticking my neck out, and I might be gone after this," Curry said, "but this is the way I feel. Don McCafferty is the finest gentleman I have played for in pro football."

Curry noted that McCafferty had directed the Colts to the Super Bowl title as a rookie head coach in 1970, following 11 years as an assistant Baltimore coach, and that his 21-6-1 prior to this season was the best among active NFL coaches.

"Now that we've lost four games, he's been made the scapegoat, and that's wrong," Curry said.

Curry argued that McCafferty had no control over numerous injuries, notably to all-pro defensive end Bubba Smith and guard Glenn Ressler, who have been out all season, or the loss for several games of running backs Norm Bulaich and Tom Matte, and wide receiver Eddie Hinton.

McCafferty, 52, took his firing with outward calm, but admitted he was shocked by the sudden dismissal. He wished the best for Sandusky, who also has been with the Colts since 1959 as an assistant coach.

McCafferty, however, has a perpetual five-year contract, at an estimated $50,000 annually, which runs through the 1977 season. Thomas said the contract, signed when Carroll Rosenbloom owned the team, will be honored through its life span.

Bauer to Assist Austrian Squad

VIENNA (AP) — The Austrian Ice Hockey Federation has concluded a tentative agreement to have Canada's Father Dave Bauer assist in the coaching of the Austrian national team next year.

Father Bauer, for many years the coach of Canada's Olympic ice hockey team, should be available by Feb. 25, 1973, the federation said. No other details were available.

B.C. Boys Take Title

CALGARY— Gary McLaren of Victoria scored the equalizing goal Sunday as B.C. tied Alberta 1-1 to capture the Western Canada 18-and-under soccer championship.

Alberta took the lead midway through the second half on a goal by Matteo Piscopo, moments before McLaren came through to knot the score.

B.C. had beaten Saskatchewan 6-0 and Manitoba 4-1 on Saturday. Manitoba clinched second place by beating Saskatchewan 7-0 in the other Sunday match.

John McGuire, Wayning Lee and Helge Fylling were other Victoria boys playing on the B.C. team, but no players from the city were chosen for the Canadian side. Only Mike McLenaghen and Mark McQueen of Vancouver were named to the national team which will compete in an international tournament beginning Jan. 7 in Nicaragua.

School Morals 'Naive, Senseless'

Canadian schools are headed towards educational anarchy with their "naive, senseless philosophy of permissiveness," the president of the Canadian Headmasters' Association says.

In a speech prepared for delivery tonight to the 32nd annual convention of the association, David Mackenzie accused western society of giving up the task of moral education of the young.

"The permissives, who have the extraordinary effrontery to class themselves as progressives, have nothing to commend their philosophy," said Mackenzie, who is headmaster of Brentwood College at Mill Bay, site of the convention.

"It cannot lead to academic excellence," he said. "It cannot result in athletic attainment. It cannot achieve worthwhile results in the area of fine arts, choir, drama, debate, orchestra."

Mackenzie commented favorably on Communist educational systems, which he said have not gone down the permissive road.

"I would not wish to live under communism and I do not recommend it for anybody," he said. "But at least the communists have not rejected the need for a moral education of their young.

"They insist that their schools teach the young such simple civic virtues as honesty, respect for work, and a sense of duty towards the community."

The permissives have abdicated their responsibility to discipline their students, and to pass on the culture and norms of the past, said Mackenzie.

"They are rejecting the cultural aspects which society deems to be of value and thereby encouraging the young in a mad dash to self-destruction which anarchy must inevitably bring," he said.

Twenty-two headmasters from across Canada attended the three-day conference, which ends today.

SOCREDS SAY BARRETT HURTING STOCK PRICES

The Social Credit caucus has termed "irresponsible" statements made last week by Premier Barrett about the government eventually taking over several large B.C. companies, including B.C. Tel.

The Socreds, in a statement Monday, said "tens of millions of dollars" have been lost by small investors as a result of a fall in the value of stocks of the companies mentioned by Barrett.

Barrett said takeover of B.C. Tel, Inland Natural Gas and Westcoast Transmission is a definite policy of the government, but did not say when the takeovers would occur.

The value of B.C. Tel shares at the time of the NDP election victory stood at $65. Monday's value was $55.

The Socred statement said ministers of finance under the British parliamentary system have been fired "for far less than the fiscal disclosures made by the minister of finance Thursday last.

Barrett Backs Barnes On Tournament Snub

Premier Barrett said Monday he supports the action of NDP MLA Emery Barnes, who refused to appear at the opening Sunday of an international tennis tournament in Vancouver because two South African players were competing.

Barnes, a black American-born former professional football player with the B.C. Lions, said he was acting as an individual and not as a representative of the B.C. government.

Asked if he supports Barnes' actions, Barrett said: "You bet your life."

Barrett said if he had known there would be South Africans at the tournament, he would not have sent Barnes as the government representative.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who may be giving out awards at the tournament, said he is not yet sure whether he will attend the tournament. He said he would talk to Barnes about it later this week.

Asked if he supports Barnes action, Barrett said: "Yes, the man acted in true conscience based on principle. I wouldn't expect any MLA to do otherwise."

Barrett said he would not have gone himself to the tennis tournament if he had known beforehand that South Africans would be competing.

The premier also commented on Barnes' remarks that he would be investigating the presence on B.C. liquor store shelves of South African wines.

"I hope he fights for it."

Asked if he would take a hand in the matter, the premier replied, "I will give it serious consideration.

Messy Guests Rile Oak Bay

Oak Bay council was told Monday night that their police force find sharing toilet facilities with their "customers" who are high on drugs or alcohol extremely unpleasant.

Ald. Brian Smith questioned the increase in numbers. He said other districts had experienced a decrease in numbers since the new bail laws made it difficult to hold people in custody.

He was told by Mayor Frances Elford:

"They are there long enough to be sick all over the place, anyway."

Council decided to call for tenders for a prison-type toilet and sink with a tiled, drained floor which could be sluiced down.

Estimated cost is $3,500.

Agent Jolts 'Buddies'

If you are a narcotics trafficker it must be quite a shock to find the buddy you've been drinking with the past six months is an RCMP undercover agent.

Constable Blaine Froats, 23, has shocked 28 persons between Victoria and Port Hardy who received trafficking warrants. And 15 more are still in for a surprise.

The long-haired, plump motorcyclist began his undercover work last April. His identity wasn't revealed until last Thursday when RCMP forces across Canada combined to launch the nation's largest drug raid.

Pubs, streets, cafes, apartments and public washrooms were some of the offices used for the dope-pushers to carry on their business.

The toughest job for Froats, a three-year Mountie from B.C.'s interior, was developing his contacts in the drug scene and persuading the people involved to accept him as a member of the crowd, RCMP Superintendent James Nelson said.

Froats was continually involved with groups of people participating in smoking marijuana or whatever and constantly had to refuse to use any drugs but still maintain his status within the crowd.

Nelson said it's difficult to tell if Froats was ever suspected by any of his associates.

"I think every person involved in the drug traffic suspects everyone," said Nelson.

Asphalt Making Operation Ends

Asphalt manufacturing by OK Paving at Sooke Lake Road and Humpback Road has ended, a spokesman for the Capital Regional District said Monday.

The spokesman said the operation was moved following a B.C. Supreme Court injunction. Residents complained of noise and smell and said the operation contravened zoning bylaws.

CHARLEY O. CAN'T GIVE HIS MONEY AWAY

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley, maverick of major league owners, locked horns with baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn Monday in a dispute over whether Finley can increase salaries of Oakland Athletics players at this stage of the season.

"I don't give any bonuses, just raises," Finley said after being handed a statement released by the commissioner on the eve of the third game of the World Series between the Athletics and Cincinnati Reds.

Finley referred to $5,000 salary increases three of the Oakland players received in 10 days:

While the Athletics were en route to Detroit on Oct. 8 for the start of the American League playoffs, Finley announced first baseman Mike Hegan had received a $5,000 salary boost but he didn't say it was a salary increase. He said it was a bonus.

And he announced somewhere between Cincinnati and Oakland that Joe Rudi and Gene Tenace were making $5,000 more. Again he didn't say it was a salary increase but maybe he didn't call it a bonus, either.

Tenace, who hit only five home runs all season, smashed two homers in the opener Saturday and was the hero of Oakland's 3-2 triumph.

"They were not bonuses. They were retroactive salary increases," Finley said.

The rules of baseball strictly prohibit performance or incentive bonuses.

"I have read Mr. Finley.s statements regarding special payments to certain Oakland players," said a statement from Kuhn.

"I have read Mr. Finley's statements regarding special no statement to make regarding this subject until after the World Series. In the meantime, Mr. Finley has assured me the entire matter will be held in status quo."

LAUGHS HAVEN'T BEEN PLENTIFUL for Oakland Athletics in recent weeks, but team mascot "Charlio O" and club owner Charles O. Finley (right) apparently appreciated humor in remark by Sparky Anderson, manager of Cincinnati Reds, in confrontation prior to tonight's third game of World Series at Oakland. Sparky undoubtedly hopes he will be man laughing tonight when Reds attempt to reduce Oakland's 2-0 lead in baseball classic. (AP Wirephoto)

Sparky's Slur Shows As A's Take 2-0 Lead

Baseball anyone? It was quite a game as well as a brilliant pitching gem by Oakland's Jim Catfish Hunter on the big screen from Cincinnati Sunday afternoon. Then in the ninth inning, it happened — all the excitement that anyone needed for a windup was right there in living color. And so was the Cincinnati manager, choking on his words.

The Big Red Machine from Cincinnati finally lit up and threatened to overcome a 2-0 Oakland lead. And suddenly, if pitching had been 90 per cent of this particular game, the other 10 per cent came to the fore. Joe Rudi, the A's left fielder, made a spectacular grab of a long drive by Denis Menke off the left-field wall, and the Reds were all but dead.

Sure, it took another good knockdown of a line drive from the bat of Cesar Geronimo by first-baseman Mike Hegan to keep things in hand, but that's simply another phase of baseball.

Defence had come to Hunter's aid in the minute of need, and now the A's hold a 2-0 edge in the series with Blue Moon Odom and Vida Blue yet to pitch.

So, it could be all over by Thursday night.

But before then, if Oakland's compulsive owner Charles O. Finley isn't careful, he may nickle himself into a contract corner before next year even.

One report out of Cincinnati on Saturday had it that Finley whispered sweet murmurings into catcher Gene Tenace's ear after the opening game, 3-2 win. "Just say that I have given this splendid young man a substantial increase in salary, retroactive to the first of the year," he later admitted.

Adding 'Another Nickle's Worth'

That bonus was believed to be $5,000, and when informed that Tenace's two home runs in succession in his first two series at bats was a new record, Finley said he had added "another nickle's worth." Tenace's yearly salary is $20,000.

Sunday, as a result, Finley may have found himself in a couple of other bonus situations. Rudi earlier had hit a home run, that proved to be the winner, to go along with his game-saver catch, and Hunter had been superb against the power-laden Redlegs. If game heroes were worth a nickle or so, they at least demanded consideration.

Earlier in the NL mini-series against Pittsburgh, the TV announcer got positively boring with the statistic that anytime that the first three Cincinnati batters — Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Bobby Tolan — got on base five times in a game, Cincinnati would win more often than it would lose.

Then Cincinnati, down two games to one against the Pirates, came from behind to prove his point and that same radio voice was a seer. He was dead on.

Now, against Oakland, the Reds face a similar task; and the story behind the first, two-game scores is contained in that simply-stated statistic. Up to now the Reds haven't hit their hat size against good Oakland pitching. Rose, Morgan and Tolan between them have only two hits in 23 at bats, and as a group have a batting average of .087.

Thus is lost all advantage they expected to gain by their superior speed on the bases. With nobody on base, it is difficult to run against Tenace, who the Reds figure they can steal on.

Nobody Feels Blue Over Vida

Then there is the intriguing story of the controversial Vida Blue. And if he's in a tiff with manager Dick Williams of the A's, he certainly hasn't shown it on the field. More or less a bust this season (6-10), after a brilliant rookie year, and a salary squabble in the spring, Blue has been the big man in the A's bullpen. It was reported earlier that he was sore at Williams for having been shunted out of a starting berth to the bullpen. But it doesn't show in the record. Blue pitched, in relief, in four of those five games against Detroit, and helped to save the series opener, against Cincinnati on Saturday. Then, he was back in the bullpen again on Sunday.

All of which has pleased Williams no end. Besides, he gave it right back to the writers when he said: "You fellows helped me make that decision — having Blue in the bullpen. I've been reading a lot in the papers about how tough the Reds are, so I thought we'd better be ready for anything."

And how does Cincy manager Sparky Anderson feel?

Well, he gets the series foot-in-the-mouth award right now for his remark: "The Oakland club has a lot of character; they remind me of a National League team."

Unwittingly, or by design, he had said the AL was inferior.

Friction Boils Over on A's

OAKLAND (AP) — If the gaudy, shaggy Oakland Athletics should go on to beat Cincinnati Reds for the World Series baseball championship, it would be a staggering blow to the old theory that success is built on harmony and goodwill.

The sports world perhaps has never experienced a more disgruntled, edgy and unhappy team of winners.

Everybody's got a sore toe—from the madcap owner, Charles O. Finley, and the chess-board manager, Dick Williams, to the star pitchers and the griping coterie of unsure second basemen.

It's one of the game's great mysteries.

The internal friction came to a steamy broil on the Athletics' wild overnight charter flight home after the team had gone ahead of the Reds 2-0 with a sweep of the first two games in Cincinnati.

A shouting match ensued.

"It seems you don't like my kind of baseball," Williams said.

"I just feel you don't appreciate the way I've been busting my back for you," Epstein retorted. "I don't want it to happen again."

Williams paled.

Another bitter inncident occurred upon the team's arrival at the airport to be greeted by an enthusiastic welcoming crowd. Some of the weary players sought immediate refuge in the team bus.

This irked Finley, who later chewed out the offenders.

"If there are any players on that bus who didn't have enough guts to get on the stand and show their appreciation, I don't want them," he said.

Flareups have erupted frequently in the team's march to the American League Western Division title, a playoff victory over Detroit Tigers and through the first two games of the World Series.

Vida Blue, the team's ace 24-game winner in 1971 season who got embroiled in a contract dispute prior to the current campaign, engaged in a word battle with Blue Moon Odom after Blue had saved the final playoff game for Odom in Detroit.

The argument took place in the Athletics' dressing room in front of team-mates and a number of reporters.

"It started out as friendly kidding," Blue explained later. "I apologized to Odom and he apologized to me."

TEAM EDGY

The whole team is edgy over Williams' practice of moving players in and out of the game. Particularly involved are the pitchers and second basemen, who say they aren't given a chance to gain confidence or a feeling of security.

In Sunday's game at Cincinnati, Catfish Hunter, who had pitched superbly, didn't like it when he was pulled in the last inning for Rollie Fingers.

"I could have gone on," he said.

Vida Blue's relationship with Williams and Finley has been strained throughout the season. He has said since the American League playoff started that he should be starting rather than relieving. The great left-hander refers to Williams only as "the manager."

PAWNS IN GAME

"I don't pitch for Williams," I don't pitch for Finley," he said on the eve of the World Series opener. "I pitch for Vida Blue."

The pitchers' discontent is mild compared with that of the second basemen—Dick Green, Ted Kubiak, Tim Cullen and Dal Maxvill—who are pawns in Williams' game of inserting pinch-hitters and pinch-runners wholesale throughout the game.

Nobody ever knows who is really on second. All of the infielders have complained. Green says he never gets a chance to bat. Maxvill insists he wants to play regularly. Cullen and Kuviak want to be traded.

Cats Eye Top Berth

Victoria Cougars aren't used to looking down at the rest of the Western Division in the Western Canada Major Junior Hockey League, but it could happen tonight.

Cougars, with two victories in three outings, take on first-place Medicine Hat Tigers in an 8 o'clock game at Memorial Arena. A win would boost coach Mitch Pechet's kids to the top of the heap.

Tigers currently hold first place with a 3-1 won-lost record with Edmonton Oil Kings second at 3-2 and Cougars third.

Pechet has his lineup intact from Saturday's 5-2 Victory over Edmonton but hasn't decided on his starting goalie. It's expected he'll platoon Sam Clegg and Blaine Ferguson.

In the only WCHL game last night, Bob Watt's breakaway goal late in the third period gave Flin Flon Bombers a 4-4 tie with Winnipeg Jets in the Eastern Division.

Tyees Thump Claremont And Collect Gift Points

Victoria Tyees received an unexpected "gift" in addition to earning a 5-0 shutout over Claremont in Victoria High School Soccer League action Monday.

In other matches, host Mt. Douglas Rams and leading Oak Bay fought to a scoreless deadlock, Mount View Hornets tumbled visiting Esquimalt 5-1 and another scoreless tie resulted when Belmont visited Reynolds.

Tyees picked up an extra two points when league officials rectified an error made earlier, when both Victoria and Mount View were penalized for using overage players.

Points from the match between Victoria and Mt. Douglas on Sept. 29, won by Tyees 5-1 but later awarded to Rams, were to be returned to Victoria as the overage player wasn't used in that match.

Gary McLaren led Tyees with three goals Monday at Claremont while singles were added by Peter Thompson and Steve Forslund. Dan Wilmhurst picked up the shutout, his fourth of the season.

Brad Clarke scored twice while Tom Wood, Sam Bender and Jim Humphries chipped in singles for Mount View. Peter Barton replied for Esquimalt.

Rugby Critics Said Same Thing Of Most Famous All-Black Sides

AUCKLAND (CP) — New Zealand's national rugby team, the All Blacks, may be trying to prove a point in Vancouver Thursday in a match against the British Columbia representative side.

The burly and boisterous All Blacks will be hoping to demonstrate they rate with their country's greats when they start at Vancouver's Brockton Oval on a major international tour that also includes games in the U.S., England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and France.

Rugby is more than the national sport, it is almost a religion in New Zealand and the All Blacks are by far the country's most popular sports team.

The team chosen for the tour has been criticized by some as one of the weakest All Boack teams ever sent overseas. Yet oddly enough, just the same thing was said about two of the most famous All Black teams in history — the "incomparables" of 1905 and the "invincibles" of 1924..

So rugby enthusiasts will be eagerly watching the opening games of the tour to judge whether history will repeat itself and a comparatively untried side will develop into a formidable combination with experience.

It is widely believed that the forwards have far more quality than the backs.

Led by captain Ian Kirkpatrick, the forwards include men of giant proportions — up to six feet six inches in height and weighing more than 240 pounds.

But it is a different matter in the backs. The selectors had a hard job trying to build an almost new backline. The vice-captain of the team, scrum half Sid Going, is certainly an exception. Many rugby followers rate him as the world's best at his position.

The All Blacks played British Columbia at Vancouver in 1963, when they won 39 to 3, and again in 1967, when they won 36 to 3.

Rally Puts Pack on Top

DETROIT (AP) — Green Bay Packers scored a come-from-behind 24-23 win over Detroit Lions Monday night to take sole possession of first place in their National Football League division.

The Packers now have a 4-1 record to lead Detroit, 3-2, in the National Conference Central Division. Minnesota Vikings are third with a 2-3 mark and Chicago Bears last at 1-3-1.

Quarterback Scott Hunter fired a 15-yard touchdown strike to rookie wide receiver Leland Glass with 1:54 left on the clock, and rookie Chester Marcol kicked the extra point, to give the Packers victory in the game televised nationally in the U.S.

The Packers trailed 17-7 at halftime. Then Errol Mann of the Lions and Marcol traded field goals of 45 and 34 yards respectively before Packer cornerback Ken Ellis turned the game around by racing 80 yards with a punt return for a touchdown.

Detroit capitalized on two Packer mistakes to score its two first-half touchdowns. Landry ran around right end from two yards out for a first quarter TD and Altie Taylor plunged off right tackle in the second period for the other.

The Landry score came eight plays and 30 yards after cornerback Lem Barney picked off a Hunter pass, breaking the quarterback's string of 80 passes without an interception.

Taylor's TD came three plays after linebacker Wayne Walker recovered Packer MacArthur Lane's fumble and returned it 14 yards to the Green Bay 11. Lane had fumbled on the first play after Mann kicked a 12-yard field goal for Detroit.

Mann also boomed a 51-yarder in the final quarter, equalling his club record.

Whalers Unbeaten

BOSTON (AP)—New England Whalers scored three goals within five minutes and 24 seconds of the second period Monday night en route to a 4-1 World Hockey Association victory over Chicago Cougars.

The Whalers spotted the Cougars, winless in three games, a goal by Rosaire Paiemont early in the second period before Dick Sarrazin, John French and Ted Green all scored for New England. Terry Caffery added a goal in the final minute for the Whalers, unbeaten in two starts.

Juniors Had Their Fling, Now It's Seniors' Turn!

Juniors were loud in 1969 by winning four of the district's six club championships. Now, with the benefit of three years of added experience, the elders have decided to make the most noise in the club events.

George Bigelow and Vic Painter are still able to show the young fellows how it should be done.

Bigelow, 62, won the Victoria Club crown for a 13th time. Painter, 55, took the honor at Royal Colwood.

Runner up in the Canadian seniors' tournament at Uplands earlier this year, Bigelow defeated another Oak Bay veteran, Alan Taylor 5 and 4, in the 36-hole final. It was a repetition of Oak Bay's 1947 final, with Bigelow topping Taylor in that one, too.

Painter was Colwood's titleholder in 1948, and he waited 24 years before repeating. "Vee Pee" whipped up 17 pars and only one bogey, got the jump on Laurie Kerr and posted a 2 and 1 triumph.

★ ★ ★

At Uplands, Bob Hunt showed no respect for age. Hunt successfully defended his title by defeating veteran Claude Heggie 12 and 11. Hunt fired a one-under-par 69 to jump into a nine-hole lead after the morning round.

Bob Beauchemin, playing out his final year as a junior, struck the only blow for the younger set. The 18-year-old southpaw defeated Larry Palmgren 4 and 3 in Gorge Vale's final.

Still to be decided is Cedar Hill's 1972 champion. Playing off next weekend will be Gordie Rands, who defeated Ron Griffis in one semi-ginal, and Terry Tweedy, who sidelined Ray Harrington.

SHORT CHIPS: Generally speaking, it was a "dry" summer for the hole-in-one shooters at Cowichan, then Tom Kerrone (on the 7th), Norman Joe (on the 3rd) and Paul Goulard (also on the 3rd) banged aces in the space of five days ... Aces also came in threes at Cedar Hill with George Whiteside (7th), Greg Barnes (7th) and Cliff Hardy (12th) connecting ... The ace by Barnes was the eighth of his young career. ...

Dr. Jack Calvert, scoring on Uplands' fourth; Gordon Munch, getting his first on Colwood's fourth, and Blair Wilson, clicking on the 15th at Colwood, were others celebrating aces in recent days ... The top prize in Uplands' Thanksgiving Day tournament went to Marty Smith ... Forced into a three-way playoff, Smith scored a 72 to beat out Glen Meadows' Brian Sluggett and Gary Bishop ... Uplands' senior trophy was claimed by Barley Humber, who defeated Paul Phillips ... Victoria women's champion Dale Shaw, who enjoyed her greatest year in 1972, will again campaign on the Florida winter circuit ... Professional John Morgan's big pitch for a tour card will begin Oct. 28.

Two Lions in Awards Race

MONTREAL (CP) — The results of first-round balloting to pick this season's top performers in the Canadian Football League show seven players nominated in more than one category.

And the results, released Monday, show the seven among 36 picked for the annual Schenley awards by 96 sports writers and broadcasters in the nine CFL cities.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the outstanding player award by the distillery. To commemorate the birthday, the organizers have added a rookie-of-the-year category to the regular lineman-of-the-year and Canadian player-of-the-year awards.

Only two players, fullback Jim Young of British Columbia Lions, nominated for outstanding player and top Canadian, and Ron Lancaster, quarterback with the Saskatchewan Roughriders, also in the outstanding class, were previous winners.

Young, along with teammate Ray Nettles, end Gerry Shaw of Calgary Stampeders, Saskatchewan's Bill Baker, halfback Eric Allan of Toronto Argonauts, Dick Adams from Ottawa Rough Riders, and lineman Ed George of Montreal Alouettes, all were nominated for two awards.

Young was voted top Canadian in 1970, the same year Lancaster won the outstanding-player vote.

Second-round ballot results, announced Oct. 26, will reduce the nominees to eight, four from the Eastern Football Conference and four from the Western Football Conference.

Following is a list of nominees in the various categories:

Outstanding Player: Jim Young, George McGowan, Edmonton Eskimos; Ron Lancaster, Saskatchewan; Mack Herron, Winnipeg Blue Bombers; Garney Henley, Hamilton Tiger-Cats; Eric Allen, Toronto; Dick Adams, Ottawa; Ed George, Montreal.

New Zealander Upsets Drysdale

VANCOUVER (CP) — An upset 7-6, 6-3, win by New Zealand's Brian Fairlie over third seed Cliff Drysdale marked the second day of first-round play in the $50,000 international tennis tournament Monday.

In another giant-toppling match, Egypt's Ismael el Shafei knocked off Rod Laver 3-6, 6-1, 6-0. Laver has had an off-year, going into this tournament with six points while Shafei has tallied 13 points so far in the '72 world championship tennis tour.

"I'm starting to play like I think I can," said the 24-year-old Fairlie after his win over Drysdale.

In another near-upset, Vancouver's Tony Bardsley dropped a match to Fred Stolle of Australia, 7-5, 7-6.

In other matches, Phil Dent of Australia defeated Don McCormick of Victoria 6-1, 6-3, Aussie Allan Stone upset 11th seed Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico 4-6, 6-2, 7-6; top seeded John Newcombe of Australia had to struggle to beat American Frank Froehling 6-3, 6-7, 6-2.

The sources said the federation argued the decision of the IOC — at its meeting in Munich during the Summer Games — was based on information not corresponding to all the facts.

Cerebral Hemorrhage Fatal to Footballer

EDMONTON (CP) — Dick Suderman, a 31-year-old athlete who played in the Canadian Football League for seven years, was the victim Monday of a fatal cerebral hemorrhage which apparently had nothing to do with the sport he loved.

Suderman, a defensive end with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, died in hospital about 26 hours after he suffered the hemorrhage while lunching at a restaurant.

A hospital spokesman said the hemorrhage was apparently the result of an aneurysm in a blood vessel within the brain—a weak part of the vessel which burst under pressure. It was something Suderman could have had for many years.

Married and with three children, aged four to eight, Suderman was having lunch with four team-mates Sunday when he suddenly became violently ill.

Suderman, an all-star last year with Calgary Stampeders, was selected as the outstanding Canadian in the 1971 Grey Cup game which was won by Calgary. He was traded to the Eskimos last week for rookie Dave Herbert.

He played in the Eskimos' 22-16 loss to British Columbia Lions Saturday at Vancouver but did not appear to have been injured in the game. He flew home with the club early Sunday.

Third Shutout For Sherlock

Rebels Grey and Tigers remained in tight one-two formation atop the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association ladder Sunday by blanking opponents.

Goalie Jim Sherlock extended his league-leading shutout record to three as Rebels Grey defeated Castaways 5-0 and Sam Laub picked up his second shutout of the season as Tigers blanked University of Victoria Vikings, 4-0.

NDP Asks Candidates To Reveal All Funds

Victoria NDP candidate Flemming Hansen has called on other federal candidates to reveal the amount and source of their election funds.

Speaking to an open house meeting at campaign headquarters, Hansen said "Liberals and Conservatives not only find a need to be cozy with large corporations to ensure contributions to their campaign coffers, but this goodwill is often purchased at the taxpayers expense."

He outlined his proposals for regulating election expenses; amount and source of funds to be publicly disclosed, political parties be legally recognized and held responsible for fund-raising, a degree of financial equality to be established among parties and limitation of election expenses by law.

At a campaign meeting Monday morning, Independent candidate for Victoria Dan Heffernan blasted government priorities in spending money on military research dustrial research is used for rather than pollution control.

"When over half of the federal funds put forward for inmilitary purposes such as biological and chemical warfare something is wrong somewhere," he said.

Heffernan said he would like to see the disbanding of the 1,000 square mile Suffield biological and chemical research and testing station located near Ralston Alberta.

Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate Donald Munro said his opponent Roger Smith's statement that a Liberal or Conservative government in Ottawa would kill small business "indicates the NDP's abysmal ignorance of it opponents."

"On the contrary," Munro told a campaign meeting, "the Conservative party's economic program may be the only hope for survival of small business in the country."

★ ★ ★

Judged solely on his record, Robert Stanfield does not deserve the confidence of the Canadian people, Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm told a coffee party Monday.

Lindholm said Stanfield's economic program as leader of the Nova Scotia government from 1956 to 1967 "practically bankrupted them as it would bankrupt us if he was allowed to follow the same policies in the federal sphere."

He cited the Nova Scotia government's partnership with Deuterium of Canada to build the Glace Bay heavy water project, as "one of the biggest financial fiascos in the history of provincial politics."

John Tisdalle, Social Credit candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, told a public meeting at McMorran's Resort Monday the "real rip-off artists in our society are the mortgage and trust companies."

"Almost without exception," he said, "Canadians will never own their own homes. The vulture of high interest rates is on their backs."

Assaulted Woman Gets $212

A Victoria woman who was assaulted in the lobby of her apartment Aug. 4 will receive $212.23 under the new Criminal Injuries Compensation Act.

Rita Lorenze Dodd, 43, of 2111 Spring, was struck in the face by an unknown assailant who convinced her to open the controlled entrance of her apartment by telling her he had had a car accident outside the building.

Mrs. Dodd, who is employed as a bookkeeper, said the $212.23 represents a week's wages plus $100 for the inconvenience.

The crime compensation act, which is administered under the Workman's Compensation Board, was passed at the last session of the legislature and came into effect July 1.

The act provides compensation for victims of 39 different types of crimes from abduction to common assault to administering poison. In case of death, compensation will be provided to the victim's dependents.

Council Supports Lawyer

Five members of North Saanich council dissociated themselves Monday with views expressed by Mayor Trevor Davis in a letter to the Law Society of B.C. concerning municipal solicitor Cecil Branson.

There was no support for Ald. Paul Grieve who demanded censure of the unknown individual who released the contents of the law society's letter to the press.

Davis had complained to the society of what he termed unprofessional behavior by the municipal solicitor during the council's controversy over the Kingswood development bylaw. This is a bylaw adopted by council but unsigned by the mayor to permit rezoning of 300 acres for a golf course and housing development.

Ald. Doug Boon introduced the mayor's letter and the answer from the law society in which that body found Branson had adhered "to the highest standard of professional conduct."

Grieve objected to the publicity given a matter which council had previously agreed to keep confidential.

"Once a faction appears to win, the vote of council to make this confidential appears to be forgotten," protested Grieve.

Ald. Boon replied that seven elected people representing North Saanich should not be considered "a faction."

With the registered opposition of Davis and Grieve, council approved Boon's motion to dissociate themselves from the mayor's letter to the law society.

Davis, who had earlier said that discussion of the correspondence was incorrect, commented that he felt "terribly sorry for Mr. Branson."

Boon said he was glad to hear this, adding that this could be construed as a change of heart on the mayor's part.

The mayor announced later that he had appointed Ald. Paul Grieve as acting mayor for the coming week, during which Davis will be in the east. The move was ratified after Ald. Boon had pointed out that such an appointment must be made by council.

Recycling Depot For N. Saanich

North Saanich municipality will open a garbage recycling depot on Oct. 28 and operate the project on a trial basis until Dec. 23.

Glass, aluminum, tin cans, newspapers and other appropriately sorted paper items will be accepted at the municipal public works yard each Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Ald. Paul Grieve estimated the operation will cost about $500 and some of this will be reclaimed through the sale of paper.

Extensive volunteer help is available to receive recyclable garbage at the depot, said Grieve, but due to limited facilities a high degree of public co-operation will be required.

Council hopes that residents of all three municipalities will take advantage of the depot and will tell their neighbors about it. "Mailing of information bulletins," pointed out Grieve, "works against the spirit of recycling."

Machines to Limit Letter Forms

Canadian letter-writers will soon have to meet the approval of the post office's new mechanized sorting equipment when they mail a letter.

The post office department has announced a set of standards for envelopes and cards which can be processed by the new sorting machinery.

The standards become mandatory Oct. 1, 1973. They give a minimum and maximum height and length of envelope, outline proper sealing procedures, and correct placing of the address, stamp and postal code.

"The average person in the street doesn't have to worry about it," Ken Stofer, public relations officer for the Victoria post office, said Monday.

The new standards are aimed primarily at companies which are large volume mailers, said Stofer.

Envelopes that are the wrong size, or have the stamp or address in the wrong place, will still get mailed, he said — but they'll have to be sorted manually.

Use of the new standards and use of the new postal code are essential to the new mechanization program because the machinery sorts strictly on the basis of the postal code. Although only 15 Canadian cities — including Victoria — will have the sorting machinery, the entire postal system will be affected by it, said Stofer.

British Columbia will be getting its postal codes in late 1973 or early 1974, he said.

A booklet on the new mail standards has been compiled by post office experts, and is available through post office marketing representatives.

"We want our customers to benefit from machine processing of mail," said W. G. McLeod, director of sales and customer service for the post office.

Young Hearing Date To Be Set Thursday

The date of a board of reference hearing into the firing of Campbell River High School principal John Young will be announced Thursday, board chairman B. J. B. Morahan said today.

Young was dismissed by Campbell River school board in September. He has appealed the dismissal.

Earlier this month, the first board of reference set up under new legislation reinstated two Victoria school teachers. The decision was promptly appealed by Greater Victoria school board.

In Vancouver, a B.C. Teachers' Federation spokesman said the matter of Campbell River high school did not arise at a weekend executive meeting.

The high school principalship has been declared "in dispute" by the federation. The declaration effectively bars federation members from taking the job in Young's place.

Ocean Floor Frontier For Canada—Gillespie

Science and Technology Minister Alastair Gillespie said here Monday the fact that Canada is one of the world's great "coastal nations" need not imply it is a shipping nation.

He was answering the suggestion that Canada should develop a merchant navy as some political opponents are urging, even at the expense of military (naval element) forces.

"A coastal nation and a shipping nation are not necessarily the same thing and might be opposites," Gillespie said on a brief visit to the city of his birth before attending a scientific seminar in Vancouver.

The minister said at the seminar, led by University of B.C. geneticist Dr. David Suzuki, that Canada has joined the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis, a new Austrian-based body of 12 founding institutions from 11 nations including Russia, the U.K., U.S., Japan, France, Germany and Canada.

Canada will contribute about $500,000 to the operation of the institute over the next three years, although Gillespie said the new body is non-profit, non governmental, multinational and autonomous.

Its purpose is to examine areas of scientific application and in a systematized manner study such universal problems as the collapse of civilization through overpopulation, and food shortage and pollution of the earth.

That area, for example, arises from studies by the Club of Rome, whose prediction on population growth is that by an increment of 7 per cent a year, world population doubles in 10 years.

"My ministry is taking it seriously," Gillespie said.

It was his view that Canada has a clear role to play in the sciences, especially marine sciences such as oceanography, marine biology and engineering. Particularly, Canada can be a leader of marine sciences in the Arctic, Gillespie said.

"It is one of the exciting frontiers. The Americans have outer space; there is no reason why we can't have the ocean floor."

He said people often fail to recognize that of Canada's total land mass, 40 per cent is on the continental shelf, mostly in the Atlantic and Arctic regions.

As a nation with one of the longest coastlines, Canada has a responsibility for the use of those waters and the conservation of what is in them, Gillespie said.

"The Arctic is our unique thing. It is an area where we've got to specialize, where we already have scientific and technoligical agreements with Russia," he said.

The 60th parallel is an arbitrary line beyond which technology is being developed to permit work under permanent ice and in ice-infested waters, going hand-in-hand with deep submersibles, the minister noted.

"There is tremendous need for activity in our three oceans," Gillespie said.

Government policy relating to the supply of scientific people at present is directed to universities where needs can be translated into numbers, hopefully to take up some of the time lag between scientists and putting them to work, Gillespie said.

The minister's appointment was in August 1971, three years after he was first elected to the House of Commons as the member for Etobicoke. Prior to that he had had a number of directorships in Canadian manufacturing companies, with an interest in science and education.

In 1962 he was a member of the Duke of Edinburgh's second Commonwealth Conference.

More than 30 tons of newspapers were dropped off at Project Recycle's Borden Street warehouse during the organization's monthly newspaper drive over the weekend.

Project co-ordinator Betsy Sweeney said the tonnage total was down from that of last month's drive, which collected 40 tons.

Calder Maps Indian Talks

Minister Without Portfolio Frank Calder said Monday he will have his staff working in conjunction with a provincial Indian committee to determine the needs of B.C.'s 50,000 Indians and how best to get government action on those needs.

Calder told a press conference he will have his new executive assistant, Reg Kelly, and another assistant working with the 12-member B.C. Indian Inquiry Committee over the next year to find out the problems of the Indian people of the province.

At that time, he said, he hopes B.C., in co-operation with the federal government, will be able to introduce the necessary amendments and revisions to legislation to allow Indians a greater degree of participation in their own affairs.

Calder said many existing government departments handle matters which affect Indians, but stressed that he does not want to see an Indian affairs department set up within the provincial government.

The 12-month survey Calder referred to is intended to identify stumbling blocks which are now in the way of B.C. Indians and recommend methods of getting around these problems.

In announcing Kelly's appointment as executive assistant, Calder said Kelly will provide a good link between the province and the federal Indian Affairs department, since Kelly has worked for both the provincial and federal governments in the past.

For the last 17 years, Kelly, 58, a full Haida Indian, has been with the Indian Affairs department, serving as a superintendent of Indian agencies, a community development officer and a liaison officer with the Union of B.C. Chiefs.

For five years, between 1950 and 1955, he was executive director of the B.C. Indian Inquiry Agency.

Calder said he has had several discussions with Indian Affairs minister Jean Chretien and expects full co-operation between the two governments on the Indian survey in B.C.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Computer Reshapes Board

Workmen will be busy nailing new signs on the doors of Greater Victoria School Board's offices Wednesday.

As part of a streamlining shake-up occasioned by a $13,500 management consultant's report, the board's top dozen officials and all the departments will be changing names of their positions.

For the first time, officials will be working according to specific job descriptions.

Further developments to follow Wednesday's switching of hats are a system of responsibility accounting; a computerized accounting system to go with it; and a proposal for a set schedule of administrators' salaries.

The computer program, to be supervised by Price Waterhouse Associates, will cost a maximum of $11,000 for 1972-73.

In other business Monday night, the board gave the go-ahead for creation of two schools with alternative structures for September, 1973. One school will be "more structured" the other "less structured."

The board also agreed to include school counsellors and students in a committee of special counsellors which is to prepare a report on drug abuse.

Rare Blood Saves Life

Five units of a rare type of blood have been flown to Victoria from Ottawa for a local woman who underwent surgery.

The woman's blood type — Lu-b negative — is so rare only one person in British Columbia is known to have it. The five units needed for the operation came from the National Blood Bank of the Canadian Red Cross in Ottawa. Officials declined to release the name of the woman.

Discovery of the Lu-b antibody was made in the research laboratory of the Red Cross B.C.-Yukon division a few years ago.

A Bird's Eye View Outside The Gilded Cage of Politics

—Bill Halkett photos

Another 'Go' at Election Would Have Scuttled Judy

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Judy LaMarsh is sitting out her second federal election in a row this fall — and with no regrets.

The "bird in a gilded cage" is free, and she likes it that way.

Politics is an expensive business, said Miss LaMarsh, in Victoria Monday to address the Headmasters' Association of Canada. Her eight years in Parliament, as a member and Liberal cabinet minister, left her with a mountain of debts when she retired in 1968.

"Another go at it would be enough to put me under forever," she said.

However, she admitted she hasn't kept completely out of the election race. She's helped the Liberal campaign in her former riding in Niagara Falls, and last week chaired a political forum in Kamloops on behalf of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

"I get suckered in by my old friends, just like I got suckered into going up to Kamloops last week," she said.

The 47-year-old lawyer will have a ringside seat for the Oct. 30 election — as commentator for CBC-TV's election coverage.

"I'm putting money on seven of them (women candidates)," she said. Not very many considering there are 69 women running in this election, she admitted, but there's a reason for that.

"Of the 69, there are not 10 serious candidates," she said. "So there's no point playing the numbers game."

Women and women's rights have become one of Miss LaMarsh's major interests. She admits she is a "radical," for her age.

Her radio hot-line show on CKWX in Vancouver, now in its third week, has a "strong women's bias," she said.

"Women have no voice in broadcasting," she said. Her show is aimed at breaking the all-male domination of the airwaves, giving a forum for woman in the broadcasting field.

Although she's signed a year's contract to do the show, Miss LaMarsh is still not sure that it's the thing for her.

"I liked it then (during her three-week trial period in July)," she said. "I'm not so sure I do now." CKWX wants mainly a phone-in program and Miss LaMarsh wants to interview people on the program, so "I'm still working on a format that suits me."

When she's not broadcasting or making speeches this winter, Miss LaMarsh hopes to qualify for the B.C. bar, and maybe to write a book.

"I sort of thought I might like to write one about the new Barrett government," she said.

★

Miss LaMarsh brought her women's rights message to 85 people attending the Headmasters' Association of Canada annual dinner Monday night at St. Michaels University School.

"I am not flattered to be the first (woman to address the association)," she said. "I think you ought to be ashamed."

She criticized an educational system which trains boys to become leaders of society and girls to become "ladies". And she urged the headmasters to open their independent boys' schools to girls as well.

★

Many school books have a sexist bias, Miss LaMarsh said. They portray Dick as an energetic "doer" and Jane as a passive "watcher."

"You do not see it," she said. "Men do not often see what a woman whose consciousness has been raised sees."

Society must stop cutting a girl's role in life down to a third of a boy's, she said.

"If we permit the roundness of the individual, male or female to be developed," said Miss LaMarsh, "we will produce an excellence that has never before been seen."

Land-Gathering Fund Sought by Aldermen

Victoria's planning committee is urging the creation of a land acquisition fund to enable public purchase of key pieces of property in various parts of the city.

The proposal was outlined today by committee chairman Ald. Mike Young, who said a proposed apartment development at Dock Street and Dallas Road, which was a "disaster from a planning point of view," focussed attention on the need for such a fund.

Young said the 2.6 acre site is a critical one for the city and the apartment development proposed, over 350 feet in length, is a "lamentable" concept.

The committee instructed staff to prepare a detailed proposal for creation of a land acquisition fund, and also to study the feasibility of presenting a referendum on the subject in the December municipal election.

Although Mayor Peter Pollen agreed that a fund for purchasing land is essential for any city, he said he doubts whether it is the answer to the particular problems of James Bay.

"This business of putting out fires on a week to week basis is getting me tired," he said, suggesting that the only effective means of controlling the development of the area would be to have it rezoned entirely to single-family dwellings.

"That kind of courage we don't find around here very often," he added.

The mayor said such a move would be neither discriminatory nor capricious but definitely in the public interest.

"We can't be fighting people off every time someone brings forward an abortion like this," he said, referring to the plans on the table.

The development proposes a three-storey frame apartment to include 154 suites. A building permit has already been issued to the firm of Shangrila Estates, but Young told the committee that the entire project is being sold as a package to a developer.

Young heatedly disagreed with Pollen that a land acquisition fund is not applicable to the particular problem of the Dock Street site. He said he had suggested to council earlier that the land be purchased, "but no one seemd to want to face up to buying it."

Young said consideration should be given to acquiring the land, and if council wants to consider rezoning the whole of James Bay, that could follow later.

However, Ald. Alf Hood commented he would not like to see a municipal land bank used for buying out developments which did not meet council's approval.

Equally, he did not think it necessary to rezone an entire area in order to control such undesirable development. "There must be something in between," he added.

Hood said he, too, is getting tired of taking action on a "crisis basis."

Ald. Percy Frampton confessed he is getting "almost desperate" with frustration at the type of three-storey apartment development spreading throughout James Bay, but Pollen told him that his support for a 29-storey tower at the Bay Village complex "doesn't help either." The remark was a reference to the controversial development proposed by J. A. Mace.

Curtis Ignores 'Names'

In Pollen's absence Curtis had referred to the previous provincial government's bungling of Blanshard Street extension, blaming a "grey eminence" for having the premier's ear, dissuading him from authorizing the project. Curtis did not specify who that person was, but the reference was not to Pollen.

Pollen then referred to Curtis as a grey eminence responsible for blocking the project and accused Curtis of lacking leadership.

Curtis replied:

"There is nothing to be gained in name-calling."

Chimo Chipper Despite Bad News On Rare Disease

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Medical experts have confirmed that Chimo, Oak Bay Marina's white killer whale, is the victim of a rare hereditary disease.

Marina president Bob Wright said today Dr. George Padgett had phoned from Moscow, Idaho, to say that blood samples taken recently prove that Chimo is suffering from the chediak-higashi syndrome. This is an inherited susceptibility that makes those who have it defenceless against other diseases.

Wright said that Padgett's diagnosis was also borne out by the findings of local pathologist Dr. Ken Thornton.

Wright and some of his staff are flying to Holland Saturday to consult with marine mammal experts there.

"We will be there two weeks," he said, "learning everything we can from them as to how we can improve Chimo's program."

Wright said everything is being done to make sure that Chimo's food is "hospital clean."

"Basically, our job is to have her on a program of good food preparation. We have changed everything. All the preparation equipment is stainless steel and a top priority will be a close watch on her vitamin-feeding program."

★ ★ ★

Wright added efforts are being made to obtain an infra-red thermometer that will allow the whale's body temperature to be obtained by placing the thermometer on her skin so that any indication of infection can be spotted immediately.

The diagnosis of chediak-higashi makes whales the fifth known species to suffer from the disease, which hits albinos with any degree of pigment.

About 300 children are known to have it and Padgett is making studies on a herd of cattle suffering from chediak-higashi, as well as mice and sapphire mink.

Wright said that programs worked out to keep Chimo in a healthy condition could well provide information that would be of benefit to children with the disease. At present, it is rare for such children to live more than 14 years.

"And," said Wright," Chimo has a chance for a longer and fuller life in a restricted environment than she would have out on the ocean."

Traffic Control for Strait

Mop-Up Under Way At Iron Mine Bay

A full traffic control and radar surveillance of shipping in the Strait of Juan de Fuca is planned by the ministry of transport.

Oak Bay council was given this assurance Monday night in a letter written by J. N. Ballinger of the ministry's operations branch in Ottawa.

Ballinger said a system of traffic control and radar surveillance for west coast waters is being planned and developed, particularly for the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Strait of Georgia and the Vancouver harbor area.

Ballinger told the council that a voluntary ship-to-ship reporting system was started July 1 "which is to permit shipping to become familiar with the use of sector reporting and will eventually become compulsory, requiring reporting to a shore regulating centre."

Meanwhile, a crew of four men today began mopping up "a disgusting mess" at Iron Mine Bay near East Sooke Park, caused by a passing ship pumping crude bunker oil from her bilges.

On information given them by the Times Monday, officials of the ministry of transport and the Capital Regional District investigated the area.

Larry Slaght, transport district manager, described the bay, which is adjacent to the regional park as "a disgusting mess" with oil covering the gravel beach and clinging to the rocks and the small island in the bay.

His department and the CRD are providing men to clean up the pollution.

A CRD spokesman said today:

"They will clear up the beach as best they can but they will have a hell of a time to get the oil off the rocks. The only way you could do that is by steam cleaning."

Plans Submitted Soon For $7M Development

Plans will be submitted to city hall this week for a proposed $7 million development to include a hotel, apartment and small convention centre, located on a two-acre site at Government and Bay.

Announcing the scheme Monday, Victoria developer J. A. Mace said it would include two circular 18-storey towers — one containing 260 hotel rooms, the other 130 apartment suites — as well as a 500-seat convention centre converted from the old B.C. Hydro building now on the site.

An extra 30,000 square feet of retail space would be included in the development and there would be underground parking for about 600 cars.

Financing has been secured for the project which is backed by a group of Victoria businessmen, Mace said.

As the height of the development exceeds the limits imposed by the city's zoning bylaw, it will be proposed under a special development bylaw, Mace explained. Under this arrangement council can allow a developer to bypass normal zoning requirements and procedures provided strictly-defined criteria are fulfilled.

Mace said the Government-Bay area has a "great future," and the new Victoria Press Building close by has set the pace for a gradual upgrading of the whole area.

DOG STANDS WATCH OUTSIDE HOSPITAL

A dog which didn't want to leave its mistress after she was hurt in a car accident kept a lonely vigil at Victoria General Hospital Monday.

Sooke RCMP said Peggy Van Alstine, 19, of 2983 Sooke Rd., was injured when the car in which she was a passenger ran over an embankment at Cooper's Cove, about three miles east of Sooke.

The dog insisted on getting into the ambulance bringing the injured girl to hospital. He was tethered outside the emergency entrance until relatives or friends were able to pick him up later in the evening.

Stores Back Off on P-f-f-f-t Halloween

Halloween — two weeks tonight—will doubtless have its share of ghosts and goblins wandering abroad but traditional fireworks will be mostly missing.

Many local merchants have concluded it just isn't worth the trouble selling them in the face of new federal restrictions.

A survey of 15 local Chinese grocery stores, usually the biggest sellers of fireworks, found only one merchant who said the new regulations would make no difference and he would continue to carry them for Halloween.

Eleven other merchants said they would not be selling any fireworks this year.

The typical reply was:

"Not this year—we've had them other years but it's not worth bothering now."

Two stores said they were undecided since the announcement of the federal restrictions and one said it had never carried fireworks.

The new rules put a national ban on the sale of firecrackers, limit the sale of fireworks such as Roman candles and sparklers to people 18 years and older and allow big display fireworks to be sold only to people trained in handling them and granted a federal permit.

One import store in the city said it would continue to sell fireworks and felt sales would not go down.

"Firecrackers have always been banned here," the manager said, "so it won't be any different now."

He said fireworks can be stored for a long time and he didn't fear being stuck with unsold merchandise.

Three out of six department stores in Victoria said they would carry fireworks as usual.

One store said it wouldn't be selling any this year because of the new rules and another said it had stopped carrying them a couple of years ago because the public demand had been falling off.

Church's 'Voice From Past' Loud on Beer, Soft on Drugs: Curtis

A churchman's opinion opposing council's sanction of a beer garden in Lambrick Park last June was heard with respect Monday but "totally rejected" by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

He went further and challenged Rev. H. T. Allen, 2140 Kings, with the statement that the drug problem is far more pressing and worthy of the church's attention.

"With the greatest respect, your's is a voice from the past, Mr. Allen, which can address itself to beer on a Saturday afternoon but not to narcotic addiction," Curtis said.

His remark was greeted by spontaneous applause from about 40 middle-aged persons in the gallery who were there in support of minor hockey and a new ice surface which came up later on the agenda.

Allen said the Victoria presbytery of the United Church had discussed drugs, but action was left largely to a special addiction council in Vancouver.

The matter arose out of a letter from the clerk of session representing St. Aidan's United Church, in Saanich, which protested the fact that a beer garden at the first Saanich Sportsarama was used to raise funds for travelling expenses of amateur teams in competition outside the city.

Allen said he appeared not as a representative of St. Aidan's or of the presbytery, but as a "responsible member" of the presbytery which was unanimous in opposing the beer garden.

The presbytery, a local council, consists of six Saanich congregations and other United churches in Greater Victoria. It rejects beer sales in a public park in support of youth athletics through concern for "standards of life of our young people," Allen said.

The more money raised through beer sales, the more impairment is produced, he said, proving the scheme "contradictory, ethically unsound and divergent from true principles."

Allen said he learned that one local group which refused to take part in the event on learning of the beer garden was the YMCA. In some other countries a "major tieup" of sports and alcoholic interests is prohibited, he said, citing France.

Prior to Allen's remarks council heard the letter from St. Aidan's, which asked for an explanation of the event, and wondered if legal requirements were met.

Curtis said it was "unfortunate the church sees fit to criticize a totally successful, trouble-free, enjoyable community event" he hoped would be repeated.

"It is this type of thing that sets the Church back instead of ahead," the mayor said.

Ald. William Noel said he thought the church had been misinformed and should be assured that minors were excluded from the garden (held in an enclosed building) and that Liquor Control Board regulations were followed. He doubted the letter represented the feeling of the congregation.

ALLEN

Noel said he knew some church people and "men of the cloth" who could "take a belt as well as anybody."

Ald. Fred Severson said the event was restricted to adults and adhered to the letter of the law. He was disappointed at the letter.

"I say shame to the church if that is all the church is concerned about. It is hardly one of the major issues of our time," observed Ald. Alan Newberry, hoping the Sportsarama would continue.

Council was told the event was permitted on a once-a-year basis in a public park.

Ald. Leslie Passmore gave notice that an application had been received from a service club to hold another beer garden in 1973.

He was applauded when he suggested he would support the church view if the presbytery could raise an equivalent sum of money for sports teams as raised through beer sales.

Severson said he was "astounded that an Oak Bay resident comes before council in support of St. Aidan's."

"We have recreation facilities in Saanich, and I'll say no more about Oak Bay," the alderman said.

Water samples collected at Clover Point

'Get Rid of Kits' Pathologist Warns

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Bacteria aren't child's play, a Victoria pathologist confirmed Monday.

Dr. G. A. Montessori, head of surgical pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said laboratory experiments using an "environmental test kit" proved its contents could grow a dangerous crop of disease-causing bacteria.

The kits, on sale in local stores, offer children materials and instructions for pollution tests on air and water.

Test Worries

One test in particular worries health authorities. Children performing the "Coliform analysis" are taught how to grow colonies of bacteria from polluted water.

Montessori said he cultured three kinds of disease-causing bacteria using materials provided in the kit.

He said staphylococcus aureus (a germ causing boils) and salmonella "grew well" on the kit's nutrient pad in the kind of environment children would provide.

Chigella, a bacillus which causes diarrhoea, didn't grow quite as well as the others. The pathologist grew the bacteria at room temperature because he "assumed children would not have access to an incubator."

"If the water sample used for the test contains these bacteria there is no doubt they will multiply in the nutrient provided. A concentration of dangerous bacteria will result," Montessori said.

He pointed out that although he grew a type of salmonella that causes diarrhoea, salmonella typhi (typhoid or paratyphoid) would grow equally well.

"If one type of salmonella will grow in a culture so will the rest," he said. Montessori advised parents to "get the kits out of the house."

Dr. Anthony Larsen, epidemiologist for the provincial health department, said he had contacted the Vancouver office of the federal department of consumer affairs about the kits.

"They are too big a risk to be on public sale," Larsen said.

He suggested that inquisitive young scientists might try such variations as planting pus from a boil in the nutrient, "and grow themselves a real problem."

Ernie Bauer, administrator of the Hazardous Products Act for the Pacific Region department of consumer and corporate affairs, said today he had asked the standards branch in Ottawa to investigate the kits.

'Fast Buck'

Dr. John Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Greater Victoria health board, said Monday that the pathologist's tests "prove the kits are dangerous."

He warned that children could grow more than 200 types of salmonella alone.

"This just proves some people will do anything for a fast buck," Whitbread said.

He said he had asked the provincial health department to see what could be done to remove the kits from the market.

"I can only repeat what I said in last week's interview," Whitbread said.

When The Times informed him of the kit's existence Friday, Whitbread said that all kits should be withdrawn from the stores, teachers should not encourage their use, and parents should not let children play with them.

Middle-Sized Jobs

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

In my last column, I presented as a public service a list of chores suitable for small children. This column is devoted to those chores and children I choose to call middle sized (6 to 9 years old).

Children this age lack the enthusiasm exhibited by the 3 to 5 year olds, but still can be persuaded to:

1) Feed their pets: Unless his pet is vocal enough to meow or bark while pointing to his mouth with one paw, the child may very well forget this chore. It is therefore necessary for you to badger him to feed the goldfish, as the only way the goldfish can remind him is to begin floating belly-side-up in their bowl.

2) Pick up the dirty clothes and throw them down the laundry chute: This is one thing that a child really likes to do. In fact, he may get so carried away that when he finishes with the dirty clothes, he will begin flinging down all his clean clothes, his baseball cards, the alarm clock — and the cat. This makes for quite a clutter in the basement, not to mention a decidedly neurotic kitty.

3) Make their beds: This involves simply pulling the spread up over all the things he sleeps with; at this age, two teddy bears and a basketball. When questioned, he will argue that since he is going to be getting back into the bed in just 12 hours, having the blanket already turned down and the teddy bears and basketball in there will save time. Besides, nobody ever sees his room except him, and he likes it that way. Personally, I've never been able to come up with a reasonable argument to refute this logic.

The only solution is to keep the door to his room closed and tell yourself that he will do better as he getts older.

While not necessarily true, it's a consoling thought, rather like imagining that a pastel mink coat would only make you look fat.

Palazzo Pizzazz

Even if your "palazzo" is a one-room apartment, you'll look totally terrific in these 50" wide palazzo pants by Beatrice Pines. Back zip them over a ribby body suit or your favorite shirt and you're set to entertain the gang or go out on a date.
In machine-washable plaid acrylic. Yellow/black, green/red. 10-16.

Cut Cost Of Clothes By Half

The Cold War never really ended.

It's still fought annually in the winter clothing departments of stores across Canada, as shoppers go foraging for warm clothes at reasonable prices.

If you think the odds are against you in the conventional battleground of the department store, try a change in tactics — go underground and join Victoria's growing army of home sewers and second-hand clothes dealers.

Home dressmaking and tailoring has been transformed in recent years by man made fabrics.

Camosun College, which has offered sewing classes since 1912, says enrolment in its traditional tailoring and dressmaking classes has dropped by almost 50 per cent in two years.

However, the demand for classes handling synthetic stretch fabrics has grown to such an extent that Camosun has now hired teachers from one of the franchised stretch fabric stores in town to give classes.

Stretch fabric doesn't require the time-consuming finishing that woven fabrics do, claim retailers, now bringing in patterns for men's pants and sports jackets as well as ladies' and children's wear.

For the uninitiated, special instruction on the making up of stretch fabrics is advisable. The franchise companies, larger department stores and sewing machine centres all offer sewing courses. Average cost of these in Victoria is about $2 an hour.

The would-be sewer should be wary of joining any class that ties its pupils to buying one manufacturer's fabric, a retailer warns.

Bryan Doyle, Vancouver-based manager of a downtown Victoria fabric store, says there are sewing classes that "are just the pyramid selling method all over again."

Doyle says these classes are not designed to teach people to sew; their object is to "teach teachers." Clients are enticed, he claims, with promises of $15-an-hour teaching fees, if they buy a franchise. Such an investment can cost the new teacher as much as $700, says Doyle.

As a consumer, make sure you don't sign any paper that might bind you to anything more than lessons. An important element in home sewing is its economy. And the shopper's freedom to choose fabric according to price and quality is vital.

If you don't believe you can learn how to sew, search around second-hand stores and alter garments if necessary.

The Salvation Army's Thrift Store, the St. Vincent de Paul Society store and Goodwill Enterprise's retail store are all handily located downtown within a block of each other. They have a wide selection of used clothing at a fraction of what you pay for new garments.

If you want to ensure getting nearly-newness, there's a store in the Shelbourne Shopping Plaza that buys and sells used clothing in good condition. All garments are held on consignment by the store for a period of two months. When sold, the store gets half the sale price (under $5) and one-third the price on more expensive items.

Manager Mrs. Margot Currie says all clothes are dry-cleaned before the store accepts them. Prices, she says, are usually well below half the original purchase price.

Second-hand and nearly new stores offer consumer bargains

'We're Asking Too Much Of the Family'

Modern society asks too much of the family, a U.S. psychiatrist said on a CTV television program Sunday night.

"We're asking too much of it," said Dr. Robert Cancroe, interviewed on The Family, an hour-long program that was part of the network's Human Journey series.

"(People) look to the family to give them all the things they are not getting everywhere else," said Cancroe.

A husband comes home from mork expecting his wife to "heal his wounds," he said. Because she can't meet this unreasonable demand, he may lash out at her.

"We become angry at the saviour that didn't deliver," said the psychiatrist. And because this "saviour" is someone well known and someone who cares for us, he or she is very easy to hurt.

Better Way

The program showed how today's family has grown more isolated and inward-looking. Yet at the same time many of the traditional functions of parents — such as education and physical health of their children — are now in the hands of professionals.

Most parents have only their own childhood to guide them in the rearing of their children, said the program. But today many parents feel that their experience has no relevance to their children in this rapidly-changing world. Nonetheless, parents are as important today as ever, said Dr. Cancroe. It is they who teach children about "man's ability to feel and respond and love."

The program looked at the younger generation's attempt to escape the narrow nuclear family — the commune. At its best, the commune can recreate the flexibility of the extended family, said the program. Yet the average life of the commune in North America is only seven months.

"It's difficult to get along with one person, let alone eight or 10," it said.

More Isolated

"A better way to solve the isolation of the nuclear family is to shape our neighborhoods differently," said Dr. Benjamin Spock, renowned pediatrician. The old-fashioned idea of young couples settling near their parents was good, he said.

Women's liberation will be the salvation of the family, said Warren Farrell, U.S. political scientist who specializes in the women's movement.

"We have to start moving toward flexible alternatives," said Farrell. There must be no rules that say women must stay at home and husbands work, or wives work and husbands stay at home, that children must go to day care centres or that they must not, he said.

Strict Labelling Laws Urged for Cosmetics

EDMONTON (CP) — Stricter regulations for the cosmetic industry have been urged by a consumer research group in a letter to Health Minister John Munro.

Save Tomorrow Oppose Pollution, based on a report made by researcher Anemone Ruder, requested that cosmetics be made subject to strict labelling laws which would make listing all ingredients mandatory.

Possible Dangers

Ms. Ruder, who said she preferred to be identified that way, said S.T.O.P. became interested in cosmetic regulations when the organization became aware of possible dangers of the chemical hexachlorophene as an additive in cosmetics.

Canada imposed restrictions on hexachlorophene last May, requiring that products containing more than .75 per cent of the chemical be available only on prescription. Use of the chemical in the United States was restricted more recently after research showed several babies bathed in solutions of hexachlorophene suffered brain damage.

Ms. Ruder said what started as in inquiry into shampoo, skin cleansing and deodorant products containing hexachlorophene led to disturbing findings on other aspects of regulations on the cosmetics industry.

Among the report's findings was that the food and drug directorate, which has jurisdiction over cosmetic products, "can act only after a cosmetic has been sold and has caused injury or has been proven to have been mislabelled."

The report expressed concern over evidence that hormone creams with a high estrogen content, advertised to prevent skin wrinkles, are sold without proper labelling, though deemed potentially dangerous in an American Medical Association publication.

Ms. Ruder's research uncovered evidence of what the report termed "the myth of the rare ingredient" where such substances as mink oil, turtle oil, and royal jelly, are common, inexpensive ingredients added to cosmetics sold at high prices.

Such additives, said the report, have no proven beneficial results.

Hope in Sight

The report said there is "hope in sight" through proposed United States legislation which would demand registration of manufacturers and disclosure of all products, formulas and labels.

S.T.O.P. said it wants this type of legislation introduced in Canada, including the submission of test results and manufacturing descriptions of cosmetics made subject to government approval.

Millions 'Embezzled'

ZAGREB (Reuter) — Ten Yugoslavs have been accused of embezzling 72 million dinars ($4.5 million) in what appears to be the biggest case of fraud in Yugoslavia since the Second World War, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported. It said the public prosecutor in Zagreb had charged the 10 men not only with embezzling the money, but also with financially damaging a Zagreb enterprise to the tune of some 357 million dinars (nearly $22.5 million).

Art Museum the 'Answer'

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: That letter from the mother of little girls who wanted to bathe her neighbor's little boy (with her little girls "helping") so they could see what a little boy looked like has been on my mind. Maybe the little boy is just as curious, and should get equal time. Sounds awful to me!

It reminds me that while travelling in Italy many years ago and visiting churches, women with bare arms were not permitted in churches for fear the monks would be "disturbed." Meanwhile, these monks would be seen roaming around the art galleries gazing at the nude paintings!

Perhaps the mother should take her curious daughters to an art museum. There are plenty of nude figures there and no one thinks a thing of it.—Traveller.

DEAR TRAVELLER: And if they're ever in Florence (Italy), they shouldn't miss Michelangelo's "David."

DEAR ABBY: Some letters you had in your column from the husbands who were patting themselves on the back because they forgave their wives for having affairs prompts me to write.

About a year ago my wife forgave me for an affair which I knew almost from the start was a mistake. She assured me that all was forgiven. She hasn't mentioned it since, but hardly a day goes by when she hasn't mentioned something she wants me to buy her. She seldom goes anywhere with me, unless it's to see some of her friends. Mine have been crossed off our social list. She hasn't had sex with me for a year. (She says she doesn't "feel" like it.)

Do you think she has forgiven me? I am beginning to wish I hadn't crossed the other woman off my list.—Tired of It All.

DEAR TIRED: She obviously said she forgave you. Meanwhile, she's milking your mistake for all it's worth. When you think you've been punished enough, tell her! Unless you want to spend the rest of your life under her unforgiving thumb.

Dear Abby: Mighty kind of you to have put in a good word for the much-maligned stepmothers of the world with your statement. "Abraham Lincoln was referring to his stepmother when he said, 'All that I hope to be, I owe to my angel mother'."

I challenge that. When Lincoln's mother died he was nine years and 235 days old. He knew and loved his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, and I believe he was referring to her, and not to his stepmother, Sarah Bush Johnston Lincoln. Respectfully—A Student of Lincoln.

Trustee Bunn Reverses Stand, Craigflower Decision Delayed

Trustee Peter Bunn crushed his own proposal Monday night, and got Greater Victoria School Board to reconsider its plan to build a $20,000 annex to crowded Craigflower School on Songhees Indian reserve land.

Bunn added a note of warning about Indian reaction to the move.

'I have a horrible gut feeling that the Indians don't feel this is a purely educational thing," he said, proposing that the board write a letter of explanation to Chief John Albany.

The trustee said he had been convinced at a meeting with Craigflower area parents and teachers Sunday night that "the educational advantages of an annex have not been made clear."

Speaking as chairman of the board's construction and maintenance committee, Bunn said the committee's search for a piece of land for the proposed annex had been requested by the education committee and could not be faulted.

The board adopted Bunn's motion that the matter should be referred back to the education committee.

"In the meantime let's have some real discussion with the parents on this," said Trustee Lavinia Greenwood.

TO PARENTS

She said all similar decisions involving movement of pupils should be brought to concerned parents "before we make decisions we have to backtrack on," Mrs. Greenwood said.

Trustees expressed concern over the annex proposal when it was brought up in committee one week ago. Bunn said at that time the annex seemed to be "the only solution possible at this time."

The annex proposal as it stands creates an elementary school annex on 1.3 acres on Admirals Road across the Gorge from Craigflower School on the opposite side of the busy road.

Five portables costing $14,500 to install would make up the annex, with library, gym and other facilities to be provided at the main school 700 yards away.

The sum of $2,500 is included for improving the field next to the proposed annex.

Bunn told the board that presentations by parent organizer Len Stephenson and Craigflower staff members to five trustees attending the Sunday night meeting had "made a lot of sense."

Meanwhile, the board discussed construction of a new elementary school for Esquimalt, for an expected 1,000 new families in the Admirals and Craigflower roads area within a few years.

Trustee Walter Donald said the board should be considering busing pupils out of crowded school areas to schools with falling enrolments. He said enrolments in elementary schools were falling in general.

"I know busing has a bad name because of what has happened in the United States," Donald said, "but we do it in the country all the time. Perhaps it's time for us to do it in cities."

Donald said he would be reluctant to approve construction of a new elementary school until he felt all possible alternatives had been considered.

Trustee Philip Ney said he thought leasing land instead of purchasing it could save money.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Michael Kirby Dick, of 2867 Quadra, pleaded guilty Oct. 2 to 15 counts of false pretences under $200 and an additional 23 counts were read against him Monday.

He pleaded guilty to all counts before Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

The 38 counts were contained in two Victoria charges consisting of 25 counts, and three Saanich charges consisting of 13 counts.

Saanich and Victoria detectives testified that cheques totalling $795.13 were passed in both municipalities between Aug. 18 and Sept. 30.

All the cheques were returned NSF and Victoria police said Dick's bank had closed his account Aug. 22 because of numerous bad cheques.

"I'm satisfied that you're completely irresponsible," said the judge, "you were virtually printing your own money."

A woman who cultivated her own marijuana plants was given a suspended sentence and placed on one year's probation for possession of narcotics.

Prosecutor Robert Johnston said the residence of Margaret L. Aplin, 26, of 1070 Davie, was searched by Victoria police July 21 and five of the plants were discovered.

The search also turned up two one-ounce baggies of marijuana, three packages of marijuana seeds, and 46 cubes of hashish.

Two women who went on a shoplifting spree Sept. 28 were each given a suspended sentence and a one-year probationary term for theft under $200 by Judge William Ostler.

Linnea Christine Heatley, 17, and Diana L. Brown, 18, both of 560 John St., pleaded guilty Sept. 29 to shoplifting items valued at a total of $27.66 from a downtown department store.

Ostler said the women "can't augment their income with this sort of thing. It's all very well to exercise your independence at 17, but that must be accompanied by responsibility."

Two men, charged jointly with taking an automobile without the consent of the owner, were each given a suspended sentence and placed on one year's probation after pleading guilty Sept. 28.

William A. L. Keddy, 17, of 4036 Carey, and Rhys A. Thomas, 18, of 811 Leslie Dr., crossed the ignition wires of a car while it was parked in front of its owner's house.

Two men, Steven Walter Curry, 17, of 2065 Avondale, and Gordon Bruce Michael, 18, of 1252 Pembroke, were each given a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term for possession of a narcotic.

Saanich police said Michael was watching a fight Oct. 15 and fled on foot when police arrived to break it up. He was pursued by a Saanich constable and while running he threw a beer bottle and a small package in the vicinity of some garbage cans.

He was apprehended and taken to police headquarters.

Police later returned to the area where the bottle and package had been discarded and found the package contained nine pieces of hashish.

Curry was checked by Victoria police Oct. 13 and found to be in possession of a pipe containing cannibas resin.

A 26-year-old man who was sentenced to six years imprisonment Friday for trafficking in heroin was given a six-month concurrent sentence for theft under $200.

Trial had originally been set for Dec. 1 for Norman George Urquhart but he changed his plea to guilty Monday.

In traffic court, Kay Mooney, 37, of 622-1701 Cedar Hill X Rd., was fined $350 by Judge Harold Alder for impaired driving.

It's Still Possible To Start Early Bulbs

You may have forgotten, or delayed, the potting of the bulbs you want to bloom indoors before those in the garden are open.

Without experience in the different gradations of temperatures needed after the eight week rooting period, it's difficult to have good blooms on strong stems much before the middle of February.

An unorthodox method to achieve a measure of success without much trouble is to put two or three bulbs (all one kind, and all one variety) into a five- or six-inch pot of sandy soil. Then bury the pots in the garden, heaping at least six inches of damp soil loosely over the tops.

If the soil is at all heavy, put a handful of stones in the space beneath each pot for drainage, otherwise water may collect in the pots and rot the bulbs before they root.

★ ★ ★

Leave the pots buried until after the New Year arrives. Then, if the soil is not frozen, lift one of the pots to see what progress has been made.

There should be at least one inch of top growth showing on the daffodil (and other narcissus) bulbs and two inches on tulips. Hyacinths too, should have at least an inch of growth made.

Even more important are the roots which should be pushing out through the bottom holes of the pots. Without a good root system, the leaves, stems and flowers will not be strong and beautiful. They will be produced regardless of treatment because they are already formed inside the bulb when you buy them, but unless you give them the advantage of good roots you cannot realize the full potential of the bulbs.

If you see no roots and no top growth at the first inspection, put the pots back under their soil cover and wait another two weeks.

Apartment dwellers lacking garden facilities will need to enlist the aid of a friend for satisfactory rooting of potted bulbs. Pot your bulbs, and get someone else to buy the pots, first putting a 15-inch stick beside each one with your name on an attached label so there's no disagreement in a mixup later.

The pots when dug out of the soil during January will just need a good washing outdoors, and then a cool place indoors for a week or 10 days at a temperature around 50 degs. F.

After that, they should be ready to start growing at 70 degs. for days and 60 degs. F. at night. These temperatures are not really forcing temperatures but will give you a longer period of interest as you watch buds develop into the flowers anticipated back in October when you remembered to plant the bulbs.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The theme of today's deal is the "Bath Coup," which is nothing more than a standard hold-up play by declarer with an A-J-x combination. The name, Bath Coup, comes to us from the town of Bath, England, where the play was first observed scores of years ago, when whist was the game of the day.

There are two reasons for the employment of this coup: (1) it might decoy the opening leader into continuing the suit, which will give declarer a present of a trick; or if the decoy does not succeed, this coup can (2) gain for declarer the time so vitally needed for his preservation. Here is an example of the Bath Coup, with both of the aforementioned objectives coming into play. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♡ K 10 5
◇ 7 4 3
♣ K Q

| WEST | EAST |
|---|---|
| ♠ 9 7 4 | ♠ 6 2 |
| ♡ 7 6 2 | ♡ A 4 |
| ◇ K Q 10 | ◇ 8 6 5 2 |
| ♣ A 7 4 3 | ♣ J 10 9 8 5 |

SOUTH
♠ K 10 5
◇ A J 9
♣ 6 2

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 2 ♡ | Pass |
| 3 ♡ | Pass | 4 ♡ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: King of ◇ South permitted West's king-of-diamonds opening lead to win the trick (the Bath Coup). East followed suit with the discouraging deuce. At trick two, West cashed the club ace, after which he led another club, dummy's king capturing the trick.

The board's king of trumps was led next, East winning the trick with his ace. East promptly led back a diamond, and South just as promptly climbed up with his ace. The queen and the jack of trumps then picked up the adversely-held pieces. Dummy's spades were now cashed, South discarding his jack of diamonds on the fourth spade lead. The rest of the tricks belonged to declarer. His only losers were a club, a diamond, and a trump.

It will be observed that if declarer had not employed the Bath Coup — that is, if he had elected to win the opening diamond lead with his ace—he would have gone down. In this case, East, upon obtaining the lead with his trump ace, would have returned a diamond. Declarer's remaining doubleton J-9 would now be trapped by West's Q-10; and the defenders would then have made two diamond tricks, in addition to the ace of clubs and the trump ace.

From the viewpoint of North-south, it is fortunate that North did not get to purchase the contract at four spades. Had he done so, and had East made the abnormal opening lead of a diamond, the defenders could not have been prevented from making two diamond tricks no matter what South played on the opening lead. At four hearts, with South as the declarer, the contract was unbeatable.

Long Hair Allowed

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Australia will allow soldiers to grow their hair to within half an inch of the collar, Army Minister Bob Katter has announced. But "sideburns will not be allowed to develop into great mutton-chops," he warned.

PETRIFIED REMAINS DISCOVERED

SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — Petrified remains of giant mastodons, dogs and horses with three toes estimated to be 13 million years old, have been uncovered near this city in northern Greece, scientists announced Sunday.

The excavations were conducted by the geology and paleontology department of Aristotle University here, in co-operation with scientists from the University of Paris.

Scientists said the remains also include parts of rhinoceroses and flesh-eating animals that looked like foxes.

Ruby Keeler Hangs Up the Tap Shoes

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruby Keeler is departing from Broadway in a mood of "amicable animosity."

"That's a beautiful way of putting it," the tap-dancing darling of an earlier showbiz era says of events "both wonderful and frustrating" that engulfed her through two long comeback seasons.

On Saturday night, Oct. 28, the still-svelte little star sweeps down the grand staircase at the nostalgia hit, No, No, Nanette, for her final performance.

Leaving the musical also that night will be Patsy Kelly. After the departure of the two vintage entertainers, the production is scheduled for some elaborate change.

"They're writing my part out of it, almost," says Miss Keeler. The Kelly role, a relatively minor maid role in the current concept, is being fattened up for takeover by Martha Raye.

IT'S THE END

The Keeler exit is emphatically intended to be the end of her stage career, although some television work would be okay.

"I'm hanging up the tap shoes—I still don't know how I took them down," remarks the native of Dartmouth, N.S.

And if she never again hears Nanette's big song, I Want to Be Happy, that will be soon enough. Contentment for her lies primarily with being able hereafter to spend plenty of time with her four children, five grandchildren, and maybe cutting her golf handicap back down to 12.

At 63, bright-eyed Miss Keeler has no hang-up about age.

"At my stage of life," she remarks, "you just can't go on and on, every day in a show.

"Put it this way. There are things I want to do, just sit and watch, and be with my family. You can't be stupid about the years, and you have to grab as much as you can."

LENGTH UNEXPECTED

Her visit to Broadway, which she left for Hollywood in the 1930s, turned out to be a lot longer than she expected.

The original contract was for a year, "but I thought the show would run for only a few months." When she got her first week's pay cheque, however, complications set in.

"I didn't have an agent or a lawyer when I signed the contract, and it was my own stupidity I didn't read the small lines. It was a matter of percentage against the box office gross."

When she protested, Cyma Rubin, the producer, agreed to discussion but urged Miss Keeler to get some professional advice. She did, the stipend was adjusted—but in exchange she had to accept a contract extension.

Mrs. Rubin is a person about whom Miss Keeler speaks with guarded non-enthusiasm.

"I don't think we've spoken more than 25 words the whole time I've been in the show," Miss Keeler says.

"Evidently, she doesn't like anything I do, or the way I dress or the way I perform."

HSN'T BEEN IN

At Miss Keeler's request, Mrs. Rubin has not been in her dressing room "for a long, long time."

Turning to more happy aspects of the two-year Broadway stint, the star talks of the "very enriching experiencing of meeting a great number of people whom I'd never otherwise have known."

But there was unending trepidation for her each night as she stepped from the wings.

"I'm frustrated every time I go on stage," she says. "It never becomes routine with me. I never have time to really relax. I'm never sure. I stand there and think, 'Look, you've done this over 700 times, so what are you getting nervous about?'"

9 IN MEMORIAM

LANGFORD — In loving memoy of our father, Francis Langford, who passed away October 16, 1970.
Gone, dear father, gone forever;
How we miss your smiling face
But you left us to remember
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered by his loving daughter, Wendy and son, Norman.

LANGFORD — In loving memory of my husband, Francis Langford, who passed away October 16, 1970.
I seem to see in the soft dim light
A face I loved the best
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far off west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world;
Your love the best to recall;
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are the dearest of all.
—Always remembered by his loving wife, Mae.

METCALF — In memory of Joseph Banks Metcalf, beloved husband and father, who departed this life on October 17, 1958. In the morning, and at the setting of the sun,
We remember him.
—His wife and family.

PATTERSON — In fond and cherished memory of a dearly beloved husband, father and grandfather, Norman W. Patterson, who passed away on October 17, 1971.
His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day we know not when
To clasp his hand in a better land
Never to part again.
—Always in our thoughts and sadly missed by his loving wife Sadie, daughter Lorraine, sons Malcolm, Gary, their families and Emily Parkinson.

ROBINSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Victor L. Robinson, who passed away October 17, 1971.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home — it was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Hysteria and Witch Killings

Many of us know that in the Bible it says, "Thou shalt not permit a witch to live." And this caused the cruel death of thousands of poor innocent women during the next several thousand years, particularly in Europe.

Several years ago, that great medical historian Dr. Ilza Veith, wrote a splendid book on hysteria, in which she told much about the history of the persecution of supposed witches.

In 1484, Pope Innocent the VIII issued a Bull which gave rise to the then almost universally believed idea that women witches often sucked the breasts of the devil, sailed through the air on a broom stick, and greatly injured many people, and committed many horrible crimes. These unhappy women were supposed to torment other people; they made men impotent and they kept women from conceiving and having children. To apprehend these poor souls, the Pope commissioned a certain Heinrich Kimer and James Springer, monks of the Dominican Order and professors of theology, to act as merciless inquisitors representing the church.

These men wrote a book about witches, called the "Malleus Malefactorum," meaning "witch's hammer," and for the next several centuries served as a textbook for the many men who persecuted and tortured and killed thousands of unhappy women and some men.

As Dr. Veith tells us, the impact of this book was frightful; it soon became an international best-seller throughout Europe, and 30 editions appeared during the next 20 years.

According to another expert, Dr. Mackay, in Germany alone the number of executions for the so-called crime of witchcraft was 600 a year, or two every week-day.

A study of the "fantastic document," the Malleus, shows that probably most of the supposed witches, as well as a great number of their supposed victims, were simply hysterical persons who suffered from a patch of anesthesia (lack of feeling in the skin), or some inability to talk, some blindness, some convulsions, and above all, from a variety of sexual delusions.

The Malleus is divided into three parts; the first giving a definition of witchcraft, with notes on the devil, the witches, and the permission of Almighty God. Here, the inquisitors tried to prove that belief in witches is an essential part of the Catholic faith, and that any denial of the existence of witches is heresy. According to St. Augustine, the abomination of witchcraft arose from "the foul connection of mankind with the devil." The women were supposed to enjoy having sex with the devil.

The second par of the book deals with the way in which the witches were supposed to work, and the ways of thwarting them.

The third part describes the proceedings of the ecclesiastic and civil courts, against witches. The authors give detailed instructions to be followed during an inquisition; they tell how to humiliate the victims, as by stripping them naked, cutting off all of their hair, and applying various types of torture.

New on the market — this lovely full basement, three-bedroom home is a joy to behold. # Trudeau's Unemployed Caller Finds Mail Sorting Job

VANCOUVER — Ken, the young man who telephoned Prime Minister Trudeau on a radio open-line show here recently and asked him for a job, has finally found one — as a mail sorter at the main post office in Vancouver.

A spokesman for the department of manpower and immigration confirmed this Monday. Earlier, Ken was to have got a job with the Unemployment Insurance Commission, but Manpower officials said later that job was open only to UIC employees.

Ken, who said he doesn't want his real name known to protect his wife's job, told Trudeau that he lived for 10 months on unemployment insurance, had just come back from San Francisco, planned to go to Hawaii and still had managed to save $1,500.

Later, he said he had exaggerated his case slightly to dramatize the position of the unemployed. Open-line host Jack Webster said the call was arranged by him the day before the show.

NEW YORK — Norman Norell, the 72-year-old dean of American fashion designers, is in hospital with a stroke. But the 40-year retrospective show of his work went on without him — at his own request.

The show included some 250 of Norell's creations, dating back to 1932, on loan from a number of his customers, including Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and actress Lauren Bacall.

GENOA, Italy — A man described as a Soviet missile expert asked Italian authorities Monday for political asylum.

Police identified him as Jono Merkunsas Lenghinas, 45, an electronics engineer who came to Italy with a Soviet tourist group Friday.

Il Messaggero, a Rome newspaper, says Lenghinas headed a missile plant in Volnius, Soviet Lithuania. It describes him as one of the "brains" in the Soviet aerospace field.

LONDON — Lord Brownlow, one of Britain's richest peers and a former personal lord in waiting to King Edward VIII, said Monday the Mona Lisa has been in his family's possession for 200 years and now hangs in the red drawing room of his country home.

The 73-year-old baron said Leonardo da Vinci painted two or more versions of the 16th-century masterpiece with the inscrutable smile.

In a telephone interview from his home in Grantham, Lord Brownlow made no attempt to discredit the Mona Lisa in the Louvre in Paris, generally accepted as the original. Other claimants include one in Madrid and another owned by a London art dealer, Dr. Henry Pulitzer.

"I can't tell whether mine is the first or second version," Lord Brownlow said.

"It is possible, but not very probable, that more than one Mona Lisa was painted by da Vinci," a London art dealer conceded.

SAIGON — A South Vietnamese colonel was fired today for trafficking in opium. Friends said his army pay was $80 a month, and that wasn't enough to support his wife and 12 children.

Col. Nguyen Thanh Yen was censured, ordered into retirement and given three months leave with pay.

Friends said Yen was paid $40 for each shipment he brought from Da Nang to Saigon.

TORONTO — Archie Bunker's bigotry is causing problems for the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Ben Epstein of New York, the league's national director, said Monday that Bunker, the central character in the television show All in the Family, "has become a national folk hero."

"He epitomizes something called the lovable bigot," Epstein said in an interview. "It has caused problems for us."

Takeovers Worry Builders

Canadian Construction Association national president Eric Hartley today expressed concern about talk of takeovers by the New Democratic Party government in British Columbia. (See also Page 11.)

"We are concerned about what is is happening in regards to the climate for investment in this province," he said in an interview in Victoria.

He said the best way to increase the number of jobs in British Columbia is to encourage private enterprise.

Hartley was hoping to visit Premier Barrett this morning, but the premier was busy preparing for his first session of the legislature as head of the provincial government.

Hartley was also hoping to see his nephew, Peter Rolston, an NDP backbencher.

As well as encouraging Premier Barrett to assist private development, Hartley said he would like to encourage the provincial government to give more advance notification of government construction projects.

He said the NDP government in Manitoba has adopted a pre-tender system whereby projects are sent out to tender and a contract is developed. When the work is approved by the legislature, the contract is then signed and construction can proceed immediately.

This system helps private construction companies with their long-term planning of projects and helps to level off the boom-slump cycles in the economy, Hartley said.

He said that over-all he was pleased with the ways in which the NDP government in Manitoba was encouraging private development.

SIMILAR CLIMATE

He said he hoped a similar climate of business confidence would be developed in B.C. by the new government here.

"We are strictly non-political," he said, "but we are afraid of too much government interference in the economy."

Hartley said the premier indicated the two would get together the next time the construction president comes to Victoria.

The construction industry was the best barometer of the economy as it accounted for 16 per cent of the gross national product.

Hartley, born in Liverpool 60 years ago, attended Queen's University in Kingston and then came west to Vancouver where he became general manager of Western Bridge and Steel Fabricators Ltd.

He is currently chairman and chief executive officer of Frankel Structural Steel Ltd. in Toronto as well as national president of the Canadian Construction Association.

Lawyer's Fee Cut $60,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Supreme Court has upheld the action of the district registrar in reducing a lawyer's bill by almost $60,000.

The original bill totalled $65,804.46 and was reduced to $5,958.88.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gould, in a written judgment handed down Monday, said the original bill was so inflated that he compared it "to a galactic explosion in all directions simultaneously."

The Vancouver law firm of Griffiths, McLelland and Co. had asked the court, under a section of the Legal Professions Act, to review the decision of the registrar in the matter of a bill presented to Margaret Milligan.

Fur Trade Attacked

MORGES, Switzerland (Reuter) — The World Wildlife Fund Monday deplored the continued sale of tiger, leopard and cheetah furs and called on the fur trade to stop dealing in skins of animals in danger of extinction.

CPR Petitioned

GRAND FORKS (CP) — Kootenay and Boundary chambers of commerce have passed resolutions asking the federal government to press Canadian Pacific Railway to upgrade its Kettle Valley route in southern British Columbia to provide an alternate route to Vancouver for Kootenay coal. CPR now carries coal via its main line.

Road Views Sent

KELOWNA (CP) — Representatives from the Okanagan cities of Vernon, Kelowna and Penticton Monday sent their policy on local roads to Highways Minister Robert Strachan. It included requests for improvement of various secondary highways and planning for a limited-access highway in the Okanagan Valley.

Kodak Meets Terms

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — An Environment Canada spokesman said Monday he was satisfied the Kodak processing laboratory has stopped discharging chemicals into Lynn Creek. Regional director Robert McLaren said the lab has hooked into the sewer system and now meets all environmental standards. The company had been given until Friday to complete the hookup or face prosecution under the Fisheries Act.

Freighter First

VANCOUVER (CP) — The captain of a Yugoslav freighter has been charged with failing to carry a pilot aboard his vessel in compulsory pilotage areas of British Columbia.

Captain Vladimir Cec is accused of taking the Mv. Morotan into Gold River harbor without first giving Pacific Pilotage Authority a waiver to carry a pilot and with failing to carry a pilot in a compulsory pilotage area.

Teachers Granted Free Lunch Time

WINNIPEG (CP) — A $41,120 suit by the Winnipeg School Division against the Winnipeg Teachers' Association concerning withdrawal of voluntary service by the teachers in June, 1970, has been dismissed.

Mr. Justice John Hunt of Manitoba court of Queen's Bench held that providing noon-hour supervision in school lunch rooms, though described in the teachers' code of rules as a "long established custom", is not a contractual obligation.

He suggested a hard-working teacher who must give up his lunch hour for supervision duty, without compensation, may be overburdened and unable to function at his best.

The Winnipeg School Division, the plaintiff in the case, had asked for damages equal to the cost of employing commissionaires and parents as lunch-room supervisors between June, 1970, and June, 1972. All services except lunch-room supervision had been restored by the teachers in November, 1970.

School Trustee Michael Barager, a member of the board's adjustments committee, said he expected the board would appeal the decision.

Parties 'All Afraid'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Doug Rowland, the New Democratic Party MP for Selkirk, said Monday none of the political parties have enough courage to make the changes necessary to solve the country's social problems.

Speaking to a group of University of Winnipeg students, Rowland said the parties are afraid to discuss the deal with the real issues because genuine change involves radical action and controversy which the politicians do not want.

Rowland, who seeks re-election Oct. 30 in the Selkirk riding, included his own party in his assessment, but said the NDP comes closer than any other party to dealingg with the social ills and real problems.

Life Term Upheld

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Appeal Monday rejected an appeal against the conviction and sentence to life in prison of Peter Lahosky, 52, on a charge of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The three-man court was unanimous in rejecting the appeal against the conviction and upheld the life sentence by a majority of two-to-one.

Lahosky, of Winnipeg, was convicted in May of this year after police seized about eight ounces of 67-per-cent pure heroin valued at about $200,000 on the open market.

'Thaw' Kills Man

EDMONTON (CP) — A 58-year-old Rimbey man was killed this morning in an explosion on the eastern outskirts of Edmonton.

Snow Cuts Harvest

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Wheat Pool said Monday that some limited harvesting was carred out in the province last week despite heavy snowfalls and below-normal temperatures.

Commenting on the province as a whole, the wheat pool said 79 per cent of the wheat was combined by last Friday compared with 86 per cent by mid-September last year.

Seventy three per cent of the barley had been threshed and 93 per cent of the rapeseed.

Recount Asked

SASKATOON (CP) — A judicial recount — the second since the June, 1971, general provincial election in the same riding — has been requested in Athabasca where 27 votes separated the leaders, the chief electoral officer said Monday.

No date for the recount has been set. It was requested by Robert Dalby, New Democratic Party candidate who received 1,371 votes in the Sept. 27 provincial byelection in Athabasca. The winner, Liberal Allan Guy, received 1,398. There were 60 rejected ballots.

DOUGLAS PREDICTS SOARING FOOD BILL

Former NDP leader Tommy Douglas says national food wholesalers are predicting price increases of up to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year.

In a telephone interview from Nanaimo today, Douglas told the Times on his return from a week's tour of Saskatchewan, where he was once premier, that the predicted increases came from a wholesaler's bulletin shown to him by the manager of a co-operative store.

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening" he said.

Douglas is telling political rallies in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-Islands riding where he is campaigning for re-election that there has been no accompanying price rise to farmers or pay raise for retail food workers — "among the lowest paid of all groups."

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year," he said.

"This was a bulletin of estimates of what would happen to the price levels of various classes of food products."

Douglas said the food prices were being raised because people wanted to "maximize their profits."

He said foods such as sugar which reached all-time low prices were bought up and stockpiled for later sale. Also the element of competition had "almost entirely disappeared."

Douglas said an NDP government would set up a prices review board which would scrutinize price increases like the ones he forecast.

Pen 'Out of Control'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Warden Donald Clark says it's impossible to control the 365 tough criminals housed in Millhaven, the new maximum security prison he heads 14 miles west of here.

He says he has been stripped of disciplinary powers by a chain of incompetent or inexperienced officials.

"This has not only made controls of the inmate population impossible, but has almost completely destroyed the staff morale," Mr. Clark said in a 10-page letter to Douglas Alkenbrack, Progressive Conservative member for Frontenac-Lennox and Addington in the last Parliament.

Although Millhaven was designed as one of the most secure prisons in Canada, it experienced the biggest escape in Canada's history when 14 men got free July 10.

The warden's letter indicated he expected further trouble from the prisoners, all hardened criminals and many of them veterans of the 500-man Kingston penitentiary riot in April, 1971, that left two men dead and 11 injured.

Mr. Clark said the rioters were never punished for wrecking the old prison and when Millhaven was opened prematurely to house them they brought the same "mutinous and rebellious intentions."

"At least 25 per cent of the present population continue to have this intention knowing they won't face any significant form of punishment," the letter says.

Mr. Clark puts much of the blame for the July escape and other problems on the "turnover of senior staff in the security division" — Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer's department.

The warden says his superiors have taken away most of his power and now prisoners "can destroy public property with impunity, without having to pay a portion of the damages."

Mr. Alkenbrack said after an all-candidates meeting Monday night he would intercede on behalf of Mr. Clark if he (Clark) was fired because of the letter.

"If they fire Mr. Clark for giving the truth on this matter, I will, as I know others will intercede on his behalf."

After the meeting, Mr. Alkenbrack said he has information about a so-called uprising at Millhaven about three weeks ago which allegedly damaged portions of six cell blocks, causing about $4,000 in damage. This was never made public, he said.

He added that the commission inquiry into the July break at Millhaven now is completed, but the report won't be made public by Mr. Goyer "because he knows this is an issue in this area and will damage the Liberal government."

Liberal candidate Peter MacKinnon said there should be a higher degree of security and discipline within the penitentiary and the commission's report should be made public.

Now Nixon 'Pushing For More'

By VICTOR ZORZA
(Special to the Times)

Some of the evidence now available suggests that President Nixon may have forced Hanoi some two months ago to make the basic concessions that would enable him to end the war before the elections, on terms acceptable to him, and that he has since then been holding out for even better terms.

The outlines of the settlement that are beginning to emerge through the fog of words satisfy Nixon's two unalterable demands — that there should be no Communist take-over in the south, and no "bloodbath" after the U.S. withdrawal.

What Nixon is trying to get now, on top of that, is a deal that would enable the Saigon regime to survive not just for the next four years, to give him a trouble-free second term, but even longer than that.

This conclusion, based on an analysis of the evidence which will be summarized in this series of articles, poses a difficult question. The only threat that Nixon could plausibly hold over North Vietnam to force it to its knees is an increase in the bombing. Any such increase hardly can be militarily more effective than the present bombing offensive. How then could Nixon have pushedd Hanoi into making such major concessions?

The answer must be sought in what is happening on the ground in Vietnam now, and in the backstage political intrigues that preceded the present moves.

Hanoi's decision to pull out of the war may be surmised from both military and political intelligence, although administration sources maintain that no such conclusion is warranted by the available evidence.

Military intelligence shows that communist cadres, highly trained hard-core party professionals, are quietly but systematically taking up positions in areas the Vietcong expects to hold after a ceasefire. The infiltration is not

Kissinger In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, is winding up a day's meeting with North Vietnam negotiator Xuay Thuy in Paris today and will fly from there to Saigon to consult South Vietnamese President Thieu.

The White House said Kissinger was going to South Vietnam on President Nixon's direction for what were termed "regular consultations."

S. Korea Under Martial Law

SEOUL (UPI) — President Park Chung Hee today put South Korea under martial law and said the people must approve his plans for political reform if the talks with North Korea on national unification are to continue.

Park's surprise announcement was made to the nation at 6:45 p.m. and martial law went into effect 15 minutes later. Park dissolved Parliament, suspended the constitution he helped to draft in 1963, and banned all political activity.

The former army general, who came to power in 1961, said amendments to the constitution would be announced by Oct. 27 and submitted to a vote of the people.

Park said that if the amendments are turned down by the referendum, he will interpret it as an expression of the will of the people against the dialogue betwen North and South Korea.

"And then I will seek a new approach to the task of national unification," Park added.

Park's move came only one week before the third round of talks between the North and South Korean Red Cross organizations on the question of reuniting divided Korean families. The talks are scheduled to resume Oct. 24 in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Whether the unpredictable North Koreans would seize on Park's latest move as an excuse for delaying the negotiations remained to be seen. There was no immediate comment from North Korean news outlets.

The president said that a major reform is necessary not only to push the North-South dialogue positively, but to cope with changes in the international situation.

Following the martial-law proclamation, soldiers in armored vehicles took up positions around major public buildings in the heart of Seoul.

UNION CHIEF WANTS END TO OVERTIME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades' Council, told a meeting of industrial contractors Monday that building trades' unions are going to "look very hard" at the elimination of overtime in industry.

He said overtime work was "a plague in industry" and said he wants to see a guaranteed income and guaranteed work year established when the next construction industry agreement is fixed in 1974.

"The rank-and-file man of today is better educated, better trained and is looking for a higher standard of living," Kinnaird said.

"He is out of the pioneer stage. If you want the best people in industry, you are going to have to give them the best conditions.

Kinnaird said he hopes management and unions "can develop a relationship in which we can avoid a hat-trick (of major shutdowns) in 1974."

Bomb Kills B.C. Tourist

BUENOS AIRES (CP-Reuter) — a vacationing airlines worker was killed and her optometrist husband injured Monday night when a terrorist bomb exploded on the 22nd floor of a luxury American-owned hotel 48 hours before planned demonstrations in support of former Agentine president Juan Peron.

Lois Crozier, 35, of West Vancouver, was killed when the blast shook the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel, starting a fire that affected the top four floors. She was employed in the ticket agency of the Vancouver branch of Pacific Western Airlines.

The bomb went off at 6:20 p.m. in room 2204, which had been rented by two men who gave addresses in Rosario and Mar del Plata.

A section of the corridor wall 20 feet square was pulverized and the blast ripped into room 2203 across the hall where Crozier and his wife were talking with an American woman who also was badly hurt.

Crozier was rescued first by firemen and was conscious as they took him to an ambulance. His badly burned wife was brought out minutes later and died in Fernandez Hospital.

The blast followed a series of explosions in Argentine cities Sunday night apparently set by Peronist supporters in commemoration of Peron's march toward the presidency 27 years ago.

Most of the other bombs had been placed in the homes of military officers in Buenos Aires, Santa Fe, Mar del Plata and Mendoza. A navy captain and a neighbor were injured in a Buenos Aires suburb blast, but the other explosions only caused property damage.

Demolition experts defused at least six other bombs.

SHRUM TURNS BARRETT OFF

The Hydro chairman, speaking to a conference of the Building Owners and Managers Association, said the cost to a homeowner of leaving a light bulb on overnight would be only one-third of a cent.

"What I'm trying to say is when you turn off the lights you have to be careful that you don't fall flat on your face in the darkness," he said. "That's an inside joke."

Chile Strike, Restrictions Snowball

SANTIAGO (AP) — The government clamped state of emergency restrictions on still another Chilean province today as a country-wide strike of truckers and shopkeepers gained new sympathizers.

Physicians, merchant marine captains and bank employees joined the snowballing strike in support to 400 jailed truck drivers. Their action threatened to escalate into a general strike.

Doctors in Santiago and Valparaiso said they would treat only emergency cases for 48 hours starting at midnight Wednesday. Sea captains said they would stay in port. Bank employees said they would remain home.

A second length of railway line between Santiago and the Pacific coast was blown up in a series of incidents that marked the protest.

Hecklers Silence Sharp

Times News Services

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was forced to stop speaking three times in Toronto Monday night when the audience at an all-candidates meeting drowned him out by booing and clapping.

The first interruption in his Eglinton riding meeting came when Sharp said the baby boom rather than Liberal management of the economy was responsible for unemployment.

The second interruption was after Sharp praised his government for its handling of the FLQ crisis in Quebec in 1970.

Sharp was drowned out by rhythmic hand clapping when he accused New Democratic Party leader David Lewis of being dishonest in his attacks on tax concessions to large corporations.

Murray Maynard, the Progressive Conservative candidate and Eleanor Pelgine, the New Democratic candidate, also were booed.

Sharp has been MP for Eglinton since 1963.

Meanwhile, NDP leader Lewis, who has repeatedly refused "to play the numbers game" when asked to predict Oct. 30 election results, told a rousing audience of supporters in Ottawa the party has a realistic chance of placing second.

Lewis said former Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans is among thousands of disaffected Liberals intending to vote New Democrat.

Kierans resigned from the federal cabinet last year in protest over government economic policy and wrote the introduction to a book on government handling of corporations published last week under Mr. Lewis's name.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, released Monday, Kierans said he intends voting New Democrat in Trudeau's riding on Montreal Mount Royal.

The Economic Council of Canada was again subject to NDP attack, with Lewis charging that its annual report is being delayed until after the election.

The NDP leader said he has direct information that the report, usually published in September of early October, is severely critical of the Liberal government's economic performance.

He said he was not accusing council chairman Andrew Renauld, appointed by Prime Minister Trudeau, of buckling under political pressure. Rather, he said, the council simply does not want to get involved in the campaign.

But Lewis said all such reports, critical or not, should be made public especially at election time.

In Tory action, an environmental corps to relieve youth unemployment and regional training centres to promote excellence in sports have been proposed by the Progressive Conservative party in policy papers.

The papers outline Conservative proposals on youth and sports. The party said "key guide" in preparing the documents were the discussion papers used at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa last December and voting on the discussion papers.

The youth policy paper said that an environmental corps would be established in the environment department to help preserve natural resources and the environment.

GERM-MAKER KIT 'OUT OF THE HOUSE'

Children using "environmental test kits" now on sale in Victoria stores could grow disease-causing bacteria, a Victoria pathologist confirmed Monday.

Dr. G. A. Montessori, head of surgical pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he grew three kinds of dangerous bacteria using materials provided in the kit. These included staphylococcus aureus (a germ causing boils), salmonella (a germ that causes anything from diarrhea to typhoid) and chigella (a germ that also causes diarrhea).

Local health authorities have contacted both provincial and federal governments to see what can be done to remove the kits from the market.

Another 'Go' at Election Would Have Scuttled Judy

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Judy LaMarsh is sitting out her second federal election in a row this fall — and with no regrets.

The "bird in a gilded cage" is free, and she likes it that way.

Politics is an expensive business, said Miss LaMarsh, in Victoria Monday to address the Headmasters' Association of Canada. Her eight years in Parliament, as a member and Liberal cabinet minister, left her with a mountain of debts when she retired in 1968.

"Another go at it would be enough to put me under forever," she said.

However, she admitted she hasn't kept completely out of the election race. She's helped the Liberal campaign in her former riding in Niagara Falls, and last week chaired a political forum in Kamloops on behalf of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

"I get suckered in by my old friends, just like I got suckered into going up to Kamloops last week," she said.

The 47-year-old lawyer will have a ringside seat for the Oct. 30 election — as commentator for CBC-TV's election coverage.

★

"I'm putting money on seven of them (women candidates)," she said. Not very many considering there are 69 women running in this election, she admitted, but there's a reason for that.

"Of the 69, there are not 10 serious candidates," she said. "So there's no point playing the numbers game."

Women and women's rights have become one of Miss LaMarsh's major interests. She admits she is a "radical," for her age.

Her radio hot-line show on CKWX in Vancouver, now in its third week, has a "strong women's bias," she said.

"Women have no voice in broadcasting," she said. Her show is aimed at breaking the all-male domination of the airwaves, giving a forum for woman in the broadcasting field.

Although she's signed a year's contract to do the show, Miss LaMarsh is still not sure that it's the thing for her.

"I liked it then (during her three-week trial period in July)," she said. "I'm not so sure I do now." CKWX wants mainly a phone-in program and Miss LaMarsh wants to interview people on the program, so "I'm still working on a format that suits me."

When she's not broadcasting or making speeches this winter, Miss LaMarsh hopes to qualify for the B.C. bar, and maybe to write a book.

"I sort of though I might like to write one about the new Barrett government," she said.

★

Miss LaMarsh brought her women's rights message to 85 people attending the Headmasters' Association of Canada annual dinner Monday night at St. Michaels University School.

"I am not flattered to be the first (woman to address the association)," she said. "I think you ought to be ashamed."

She criticized an educational system which trains boys to become leaders of society and girls to become "ladies". And she urged the headmasters to open their independent boys' schools to girls as well.

★

Many school books have a sexist bias, Miss LaMarsh said. They portray Dick as an energetic "doer" and Jane as a passive "watcher."

"You do not see it," she said. "Men do not often see what a woman whose consciousness has been raised sees."

Society must stop cutting a girl's role in life down to a third of a boy's, she said.

If we permit the rounde

"If we permit the roundness of the individual, male or female, to be developed," said Miss LaMarsh, "we will produce an excellence that has never before been seen."

Land-Gathering Fund Sought by Aldermen

Victoria's planning committee is urging the creation of a land acquisition fund to enable public purchase of key pieces of property in various parts of the city.

The proposal was outlined today by committee chairman Ald. Mike Young, who said a proposed apartment development at Dock Street and Dallas Road, which was a "disaster from a planning point of view," focussed attention on the need for such a fund.

Young said the 2.6 acre site is a critical one for the city and the apartment development proposed, over 350 feet in length, is a "lamentable" concept.

The committee instructed staff to prepare a detailed proposal for creation of a land acquisition fund, and also to study the feasibility of presenting a referendum on the subject in the December municipal election.

Although Mayor Peter Pollen agreed that a fund for purchasing land is essential for any city, he said he doubts whether it is the answer to the particular problems of James Bay.

"This business of putting out fires on a week to week basis is getting me tired," he said, suggesting that the only effective means of controlling the development of the area would be to have it rezoned entirely to single-family dwellings.

"That kind of courage we don't find around here very often," he added.

The mayor said such a move would be neither discriminatory nor capricious but definitely in the public interest.

"We can't be fighting people off every time someone brings forward an abortion like this," he said, referring to the plans on the table.

The development proposes a three-storey frame apartment to include 154 suites. A building permit has already been issued to the firm of Shangrila Estates, but Young told the committee that the entire project is being sold as a package to a developer.

Young heatedly disagreed with Pollen that a land acquisition fund is not applicable to the particular problem of the Dock Street site. He said he had suggested to council earlier that the land be purchased, "but no one seemd to want to face up to buying it."

Young said consideration should be given to acquiring the land, and if council wants to consider rezoning the whole of James Bay, that could follow later.

However, Ald. Alf Hood commented he would not like to see a municipal land bank used for buying out development which did not meet council's approval.

Equally, he did not think it necessary to rezone an entire area in order to control such undesirable development. "There must be something in between," he added.

Hood said he, too, is getting tired of taking action on a "crisis basis."

Ald. Percy Frampton confessed he is getting "almost desperate" with frustration at the type of three-storey apartment development spreading throughout James Bay, but Pollen told him that his support for a 29-storey tower at the Bay Village complex "doesn't help either." The remark was a reference to the controversial development proposed by J. A. Mace.

Curtis Ignores 'Names'

In Pollen's absence Curtis had referred to the previous provincial government's bungling of Blanshard Street extension, blaming a "grey eminence" for having the premier's ear, dissuading him from authorizing the project. Curtis did not specify who that person was, but the reference was not to Pollen.

Pollen then referred to Curtis as a grey eminence responsible for blocking the project and accused Curtis of lacking leadership.

Curtis replied:

Chimo Chipper Despite Bad News On Rare Disease

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Medical experts have confirmed that Chimo, Oak Bay Marina's white killer whale, is the victim of a rare hereditary disease.

Marina president Bob Wright said today Dr. George Padgett had phoned from Moscow, Idaho, to say that blood samples taken recently prove that Chimo is suffering from the chediak-higashi syndrome. This is an inherited susceptibility that makes those who have it defenceless against other diseases.

Wright said that Padgett's diagnosis was also borne out by the findings of local pathologist Dr. Ken Thornton.

Wright and some of his staff are flying to Holland Saturday to consult with marine mammal experts there.

"We will be there two weeks," he said, "learning everything we can from them as to how we can improve Chimo's program."

Wright said everything is being done to make sure that Chimo's food is "hospital clean."

"Basically, our job is to have her on a program of good food preparation. We have changed everything. All the preparation equipment is stainless steel and a top priority will be a close watch on her vitamin-feeding program."

★ ★ ★

Wright added efforts are being made to obtain an infra-red thermometer that will allow the whale's body temperature to be obtained by placing the thermometer on her skin so that any indication of infection can be spotted immediately.

The diagnosis of chediak-higashi makes whales the fifth known species to suffer from the disease, which hits albinos with any degree of pigment.

About 300 children are known to have it and Padgett is making studies on a herd of cattle suffering from chediak-higashi, as well as mice and sapphire mink.

Wright said that programs worked out to keep Chimo in a healthy condition could well provide information that would be of benefit to children with the disease. At present, it is rare for such children to live more than 14 years.

"And," said Wright," Chimo has a chance for a longer and fuller life in a restricted environment than she would have out on the ocean."

Traffic Control for Strait

Mop-Up Under Way At Iron Mine Bay

A full traffic control and radar surveillance of shipping in the Strait of Juan de Fuca is planned by the ministry of transport.

Oak Bay council was given this assurance Monday night in a letter written by J. N. Ballinger of the ministry's operations branch in Ottawa.

Ballinger said a system of traffic control and radar surveillance for west coast waters is being planned and developed, particulary for the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the Strait of Georgia and the Vancouver harbor area.

Ballinger told the council that a voluntary ship-to-ship reporting system was started July 1 "which is to permit shipping to become familiar with the use of sector reporting and will eventually become compulsory, requiring reporting to a shore regulating centre."

Meanwhile, a crew of four men today began mopping up "a disgusting mess" at Iron Mine Bay near East Sooke Park, caused by a passing ship pumping crude bunker oil from her bilges.

On information given them by the Times Monday, officials of the ministry of transport and the Capital Regional District investigated the area.

Larry Slaght, transport district manager, described the bay, which is adjacent to the regional park as "a disgusting mess" with oil covering the gravel beach and clinging to the rocks and the small island in the bay.

His department and the CRD are providing men to clean up the pollution.

A CRD spokesman said today:

"They will clear up the beach as best they can but they will have a hell of a time to get the oil off the rocks. The only way you could do that is by steam cleaning."

Plans Submitted Soon For $7M Development

Plans will be submitted to city hall this week for a proposed $7 million development to include a hotel, apartment and small convention centre, located on a two-acre site at Government and Bay.

Announcing the scheme Monday, Victoria developer J. A. Mace said it would include two circular 18-storey towers — one containing 260 hotel rooms, the other 130 apartment suites — as well as a 500-seat convention centre converted from the old B.C. Hydro building now on the site.

An extra 30,000 square feet of retail space would be included in the development and there would be underground parking for about 600 cars.

Financing has been secured for the project which is backed by a group of Victoria businessmen, Mace said.

As the height of the development exceeds the limits imposed by the city's zoning bylaw, it will be proposed under a special development bylaw, Mace explained. Under this arrangement council can allow a developer to bypass normal zoning requirements and procedures provided strictly-defined criteria are fulfilled.

Mace said the Government-Bay area has a "great future," and the new Victoria Press Building close by has set the pace for a gradual upgrading of the whole area.

DOG STANDS WATCH OUTSIDE HOSPITAL

A dog which didn't want to leave its mistress after she was hurt in a car accident kept a lonely vigil at Victoria General Hospital Monday.

Sooke RCMP said Peggy Van Alstine, 19, of 2983 Sooke Rd., was injured when the car in which she was a passenger ran over an embankment at Cooper's Cove, about three miles east of Sooke.

The dog insisted on getting into the ambulance bringing the injured girl to hospital. He was tethered outside the emergency entrance until relatives or friends were able to pick him up later in the evening.

Stores Back Off on P-f-f-f-t Halloween

Halloween — two weeks to-night—will doubtless have its share of ghosts and goblins wandering abroad but traditional fireworks will be mostly missing.

Many local merchants have concluded it just isn't worth the trouble selling them in the face of new federal restrictions.

A survey of 15 local Chinese grocery stores, usually the biggest sellers of fireworks, found only one merchant who said the new regulations would make no difference and he would continue to carry them for Halloween.

Eleven other merchants said they would not be selling any fireworks this year.

The typical reply was:

"Not this year—we've had them other years but it's not worth bothering now."

Two stores said they were undecided since the announcement of the federal restrictions and one said it had never carried fireworks.

The new rules put a national ban on the sale of firecrackers, limit the sale of fireworks such as Roman candles and sparklers to people 18 years and older and allows big display fireworks to be sold only to people trained in handling them and granted a federal permit.

One import store in the city said it would continue to sell fireworks and felt sales would not go down.

"Firecrackers have always been banned here," the manager said, "so it won't be any different now."

He said fireworks can be stored for a long time and he didn't fear being stuck with unsold merchandise.

Three out of six department stores in Victoria said they would carry fireworks as usual.

One store said it wouldn't be selling any this year because of the new rules and another said it had stopped carrying them a couple of years ago because the public demand had been falling off.

Church's 'Voice From Past' Loud on Beer, Soft on Drugs: Curtis

A churchman's opinion opposing council's sanction of a beer garden in Lambrick Park last June was heard with respect Monday but "totally rejected" by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

He went further and challenged Rev. H. T. Allen, 2140 Kings, with the statement that the drug problem is far more pressing and worthy of the church's attention.

"With the greatest respect, your's is a voice from the past Mr. Allen, which can address itself to beer on a Saturday afternoon but not to narcotic addiction," Curtis said.

His remark was greeted by spontaneous applause from about 40 middle-aged persons in the gallery who were there in support of minor hockey and a new ice surface which came up later on the agenda.

Allen said the Victoria presbytery of the United Church had discussed drugs, but action was left largely to a special addiction council in Vancouver.

The matter arose out of a letter from the clerk of session representing St. Aidan's United Church, in Saanich, which protested the fact that a beer garden at the first Saanich Sportsarama was used to raise funds for travelling expenses of amateur teams in competition outside the city.

Allen said he appeared not as a representative of St. Aidan's or of the presbytery, but as a "responsible member" of the presbytery which was unanimous in opposing the beer garden.

The presbytery, a local council, consists of six Saanich congregations and other United churches in Greater Victoria. It rejects beer sales in a public park in support of youth athletics through concern for "standards of life of our young people," Allen said.

The more money raised through beer sales, the more impairment is produced, he said, proving the scheme "contradictory, ethically unsound and divergent from true principles."

Allen said he learned that one local group which refused to take part in the event on learning of the beer garden was the YMCA. In some other countries a "major tieup" of sports and alcoholic interests is prohibited, he said, citing France.

Prior to Allen's remarks council heard the letter from St. Aidan's, which asked for an explanation of the event, and wondered if legal requirements were met.

Curtis said it was "unfortunate the church sees fit to criticize a totally successful, trouble-free, enjoyable community event" he hoped would be repeated.

"It is this type of thing that sets the Church back instead of ahead," the mayor said.

Ald. William Noel said he thought the church had been misinformed and should be assured that minors were excluded from the garden (held in an enclosed building) and that Liquor Control Board regulations were followed. He doubted the letter represented the feeling of the congregation.

ALLEN

Noel said he knew some church people and "men of the cloth" who could "take a belt as well as anybody."

Ald. Fred Severson said the event was restricted to adults and adhered to the letter of the law. He was disappointed at the letter.

"I say shame to the church if that is all the church is concerned about. It is hardly one of the major issues of our time," observed Ald. Alan Newberry, hoping the Sportsarama would continue.

Council was told the event was permitted on a once-a-year basis in a public park.

Ald. Leslie Passmore gave notice that an application had been received from a service club to hold another beer garden in 1973.

He was applauded when he suggested he would support the church view if the presbytery could raise an equivalent sum of money for sports teams as raised through beer sales.

Severson said he was "astounded that an Oak Bay resident comes before council in support of St. Aidan's."

"We have recreation facilities in Saanich, and I'll say no more about Oak Bay," the alderman said.

DOUGLAS PREDICTS SOARING FOOD BILL

Former NDP leader Tommy Douglas says national food wholesalers are predicting price increases of up to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year.

In a telephone interview from Nanaimo today, Douglas told the Times on his return from a week's tour of Saskatchewan, where he was once premier, that the predicted increases came from a wholesaler's bulletin shown to him by the manager of a co-operative store.

"I'm often alarmed by price increases, but this projection is frightening" he said.

Douglas is telling political rallies in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-Islands riding where he is campaigning for re-election that there has been no accompanying price rise to farmers or pay raise for retail food workers — "among the lowest paid of all groups."

"The manager of a large store took me to the back and showed me a bulletin of wholesale prices that will climb from 7½ to 15 per cent in the first six months of next year," he said.

"This was a bulletin of estimates of what would happen to the price levels of various classes of food products."

Douglas said the food prices were being raised because people wanted to "maximize their profits."

He said foods such as sugar which reached all-time low prices were bought up and stockpiled for later sale. Also the element of competition had "almost entirely disappeared."

Douglas said an NDP government would set up a prices review board which would scrutinize price increases like the ones he forecast.

Minimum Wage $2

A guaranteed $200 a month for senior citizens and handicapped persons and a $2-an-hour minimum wage highlighted the Throne Speech today at the opening of the first session of the B.C. legislature under Premier Dave Barrett's NDP government.

"With or without" help from Ottawa, the $200 pension will be paid out before Christmas, Barrett said at a news conference earlier today.

"Amiable discussion" between B.C. and Ottawa over who will pay how much of the increase is still going on, he said. The cost could be between $45 and $60 million.

The minimum wage will rise from its present $1.50 an hour to $2.50 in June, 1974, "giving everybody enough time to plan," Barrett said at the news conference.

The first increase, to $2, will become effective on passage of the bill at this session, which is expected to last about two weeks.

★ ★ ★

The only surprise piece of legislation announced in the brief three-minute speech read by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson is aimed at municipal zoning across the province.

To prevent agricultural lands from being wiped out by "galloping rezoning," in Barrett's words, councils will be required to pass rezoning bylaws by a two-thirds majority, instead of by a simple majority.

★ ★ ★

As expected, bills were introduced today to wipe out the effect of the liquor and tobacco advertising bans brought in by the Bennett government.

Another bill confirms that the controversial mediation commission will be fired.

There is also a bill to bring the B.C. gift tax act into line with federal legislation along with a few housekeeping measures.

The minimum wage legislation will also combine the male and female rates to a single amount.

But Barrett said it is impossible at this stage to review the exemptions or classifications which the law requires employers to pay the minimum wage.

The classifications used by the past government were only the result of "a collection of opinions" affected by the biases of people who held them.

★ ★ ★

The criterion was "purely speculative," he said.

But he said he expects Ottawa "to act responsibly" and he expects the action will come before the federal election Oct. 30.

The speech says the $200 guaranteed income to senior citizens will be the first anywhere in North America.

"It is this government's sincere attempt to pioneer legislation for the senior citizens of this province. "Without their energy, dedication and commitment to the province in its early days, none of us would be in a position to enjoy our great province as much as we do today.

"This program will cost a substantial amount of money but this wealthy province has the funds available and it is a matter of some urgency that these funds be put into the hands of our senior citizens as soon as possible."

HIGHLIGHTS

—An act to raise the minimum wage for men and women, making it $2 an hour when the bill is passed, $2.25 after Dec. 31, 1973, and $2.50 after June 1, 1974.

—A Guaranteed Minimum Income Assistance Act, designed to provide every person in the province aged 65 and over with a $200 monthly income. The province will make up the difference between each person's income and $200 where necessary.

—An act to eliminate the position of commissioner under the B.C. Mediation Commission Act, and to repeal the controversial sections 18 and 19 of the act.

—An act to amend the municipal act so that zoning changes cannot be made without the consent of two-thirds of the members of municipal councils and regional districts. The Social Credit government had reduced this requirement to one-half in the last session.

—A legislative procedure and practice inquiry act, allowing Speaker Gordon Dowding to establish a committee to study legislative practices in other legislatures.

—An act to amend the public schools act so that school districts will be allowed to exceed the former 108 per cent level of their basic education programs and so that teachers' salary increases above the 6.5 per cent level will not have to go to the taxpayers for approval.

—An act to amend the Gift Tax Act to bring it in line with federal legislation.

—An act to amend the Land Registry Act, intended as the first item of business after the throne speech, in line with tradition. No major legislative changes are expected in this area.

Now Nixon 'Pushing For More'

By VICTOR ZORZA
(Special to the Times)

Some of the evidence now available suggests that President Nixon may have forced Hanoi some two months ago to make the basic concessions that would enable him to end the war before the elections, on terms acceptable to him, and that he has since then been holding out for even better terms.

The outlines of the settlement that are beginning to emerge through the fog of words satisfy Nixon's two unalterable demands — that there should be no Communist take-over in the south, and no "bloodbath" after the U.S. withdrawal.

What Nixon is trying to get now, on top of that, is a deal that would enable the Saigon regime to survive not just for the next four years, to give him a trouble-free second term, but even longer than that.

This conclusion, based on an analysis of the evidence which will be summarized in this series of articles, poses a difficult question. The only threat that Nixon could plausibly hold over North Vietnam to force it to its knees is an increase in the bombing. Any such increase hardly can be militarily more effective than the present bombing offensive. How then could Nixon have pushed Hanoi into making such major concessions?

The answer must be sought in what is happening on the ground in Vietnam now, and in the backstage political intrigues that preceded the present moves.

Hanoi's decision to pull out of the war may be surmised from both military and political intelligence, although administration sources maintain that no such conclusion is warranted by the available evidence.

Military intelligence shows that communist cadres, highly trained hard-core party professionals, are quietly but systematically taking up positions in areas the Vietcong expects to hold after a cease-fire. The infiltration is not

Kissinger In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top national security adviser, Henry Kissinger, is winding up a day's meeting with North Vietnam negotiator Xuay Thuy in Paris today and will fly from there to Saigon to consult South Vietnamese President Thieu.

The White House said Kissinger was going to South Vietnam on President Nixon's direction for what were termed "regular consultations."

S. Korea Under Martial Law

SEOUL (UPI) — President Park Chung Hee today put South Korea under martial law and said the people must approve his plans for political reform if the talks with North Korea on national unification are to continue.

Park's surprise announcement was made to the nation at 6:45 p.m. and martial law went into effect 15 minutes later. Park dissolved Parliament, suspended the constitution he helped to draft in 1963, and banned all political activity.

The former army general, who came to power in 1961, said amendments to the constitution would be announced by Oct. 27 and submitted to a vote of the people.

Park said that if the amendments are turned down by the referendum, he will interpret it as an expression of the will of the people against the dialogue betwen North and South Korea.

"And then I will seek a new approach to the task of national unification," Park added.

Park's move came only one week before the third round of talks between the North and South Korean Red Cross organizations on the question of reuniting divided Korean families. The talks are scheduled to resume Oct. 24 in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Whether the unpredictable North Koreans would seize on Park's latest move as an excuse for delaying the negotiations remained to be seen. There was no immediate comment from North Korean news outlets.

The president said that a major reform is necessary not only to push the North-South dialogue positively, but to cope with changes in the international situation.

Following the martial-law proclamation, soldiers in armored vehicles took up positions around major public buildings in the heart of Seoul.

UNION CHIEF WANTS END TO OVERTIME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades' Council, told a meeting of industrial contractors Monday that building trades' unions are going to "look very hard" at the elimination of overtime in industry.

He said overtime work was "a plague in industry" and said he wants to see a guaranteed income and guaranteed work year established when the next construction industry agreement is fixed in 1974.

"The rank-and-file man of today is better educated, better trained and is looking for a higher standard of living," Kinnaird said.

"He is out of the pioneer stage. If you want the best people in industry, you are going to have to give them the best conditions.

Kinnaird said he hopes management and unions "can develop a relationship in which we can avoid a hat-trick (of major shutdowns) in 1974."

Millhaven 'Impossible'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Warden Donald Clark says it's impossible to control the 265 tough criminals housed in Millhaven, the new maximum security prison he heads 14 miles west of here.

He says he has been stripped of disciplinary powers by a chain of incompetent or inexperienced officials.

"This has not only made controls of the inmate population impossible, but has almost completely destroyed the staff morale," Mr. Clark said in a 10-page letter to Douglas Alkenbrack, Progressive Conservative member for Frontenac-Lennox and Addington in the last Parliament.

But Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said today he has been told that Clark never stated that it is impossible to control the prisoners of his institution.

Goyer criticized Alkenbrack.

"I deplore the fact that an MP is playing with the truth and misleading the public with such a report," Goyer said.

"I'm assured that Mr. Clark never wrote such a letter to Mr. Alkenbrack."

The solicitor-general said his information came in a conversation with the commissioner of the Canadian penitentiary service.

The commission had spoken with Clark and assured Goyer that such a letter had not been written.

Although Millhaven was designed as one of the most secure prisons in Canada, it experienced the biggest escape in Canada's history when 14 men got free July 10.

The warden's letter indicated he expected further trouble from the prisoners, all hardened criminals and many of them veterans of the 500-man Kingston penitentiary riot in April, 1971, that left two men dead and 11 injured.

BOMB KILLS B.C. TOURIST

BUENOS AIRES (CP-Reuter) — A vacationing airline worker was killed and her optometrist husband injured Monday night when a terrorist bomb exploded on the 22nd floor of a luxury American-owned hotel 48 hours before planned demonstrations in support of former Agentine president Juan Peron.

Lois Crozier, 35, of West Vancouver, was killed when the blast shook the 24-storey Sheraton Hotel, starting a fire that affected the top four floors.

Hecklers Silence Sharp

Times News Services

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was forced to stop speaking three times in Toronto Monday night when the audience at an all-candidates meeting drowned him out by booing and clapping.

The first interruption in his Eglinton riding meeting came when Sharp said the baby boom rather than Liberal management of the economy was responsible for unemployment.

The second interruption was after Sharp praised his government for its handling of the FLQ crisis in Quebec in 1970.

Sharp was drowned out by rhythmic hand clapping when he accused New Democratic Party leader David Lewis of being dishonest in his attacks on tax concessions to large corporations.

Murray Maynard, the Progressive Conservative candidate and Eleanor Pelgine, the New Democratic candidate, also were booed.

Sharp has been MP for Eglinton since 1963.

Meanwhile, NDP leader Lewis, who has repeatedly refused "to play the numbers game" when asked to predict Oct. 30 election results, told a rousing audience of supporters in Ottawa the party has a realistic chance of placing second.

Lewis said former Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans is among thousands of disaffected Liberals intending to vote New Democrat.

Kierans resigned from the federal cabinet last year in protest over government economic policy and wrote the introduction to a book on government handling of corporations published last week under Lewis' name.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, released Monday, Kierans said he intends voting New Democrat in Trudeau's riding on Montreal Mount Royal.

The Economic Council of Canada was again subject to NDP attack, with Lewis charging that its annual report is being delayed until after the election.

The NDP leader said he has direct information that the report, usually published in September of early October, is severely critical of the Liberal government's economic performance.

He said he was not accusing council chairman Andrew Renauld, appointed by Prime Minister Trudeau, of buckling under political pressure. Rather, he said, the council simply does not want to get involved in the campaign.

But Lewis said all such reports, critical or not, should be made public especially at election time.

In Tory action, an environmental corps to relieve youth unemployment and regional training centres to promote excellence in sports have been proposed by the Progressive Conservative party in policy papers.

The papers outline Conservative proposals on youth and sports. The party said "key guide" in preparing the documents were the discussion papers used at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa last December and voting on the discussion papers.

The youth policy paper said that an environmental corps would be established in the environment department to help preserve natural resources and the environment.

GERM-MAKER KIT 'OUT OF THE HOUSE'

Children using "environmental test kits" now on sale in Victoria stores could grow disease-causing bacteria, a Victoria pathologist confirmed Monday.

Dr. G. A. Montessori, head of surgical pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he grew three kinds of dangerous bacteria using materials provided in the kit. These included staphylococcus aureus (a germ causing boils), salmonella (a germ that causes anything from diarrhea to typhoid) and chigella (a germ that also causes diarrhea).

Local health authorities have contacted both provincial and federal governments to see what can be done to remove the kits from the market.
